PLAN AFOOT IN PARIS TO PAY BANQUE DEPOSITORS

French Government Has Reflotation Proposal

USE BOXER FUND

Small Losers To Be Paid In Cash, Big Ones In Shares

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Jan. 17.—The matter of the Banque Industrielle de Chine is soon to come up again before Parliament.

According to Le Petit Parisien, the reflotation scheme provides for the apportionment of 320,000,000 francs, out of nearly 400,000,000 francs owing on the score of the Boxer Indemnity to depositors, the small depositors being paid fully in cash and the large depositors receiving payment half in cash and half in shares of the new institution which is to replace the Banque Industrielle de Chine. The balance of the sum owing under the Boxer indemnity, mentioned above, is to be used in redeeming those notes of the Banque which are still outstanding. Further measures are to be resorted to should the above amounts prove insufficient.

Exchange Official Held As Embezzler; Gets Bail Reduction

In asking for a reduction of bail for his client, Chow Li-nan, vice-president of the Far Eastern Stock and Produce Exchange who is charged with embezzling $30,000, Mr. R. S. Haskell declared that the prosecution would have trouble in showing that the amount involved was a tenth of that claimed and that probably no complainants would appear. Mr. H. C. Mei, counsel for the six complainants, retorted that the amount was actually nearer $50,000 than $30,000, as he would prove at the proper time. The court, British Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Li, reduced the amount of security from $10,000 to $5,000.

David Yui To Arrive Here Today

Dr. David Z. T. Yui, who was one of the two people's delegates to the Washington Disarmament Conference, is returning to Shanghai today on the C. P. O. S. Liner Empress of Russia and is to deliver an address tomorrow afternoon at a meeting of the United Federation of Chinese Chambers of Commerce and the Union of Educational Organisations.

On the same vessel Mr. Jabin Hsu, who represented THE CHINA PRESS and THE EVENING STAR at the Conference besides being attached to the Chinese delegation, will return home.

Some Anxiety Is Felt for Pope

Rome, Jan. 19.—His Holiness the Pope is ill with influenza. Some anxiety is felt as his temperature reached 104 degrees and complications are feared.

PEKING TO PAY UP

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Jan. 20.—Chinese Government employes will be paid in full before the China New Year, according to Liang Shih-yi, who in a statement says that $7,000,000 has been secured by bonds secured by the Salt Gabelle and $3,000,000 more from the salt surplus.

SHIP STRIKE IN ITALY

(Reuter's Service)

Rome, Jan. 19.—As a result of a wage dispute between the leader of the seamen's union and the Ship-owners' Federation, the latter has decided to lay up all vessels and dismiss the crews. Up to the present 151 ships, aggregating over 500,000 tons, have been laid up.

Calls Husband Victim Of "Woman Mania"

Captain David, R. Cooper, of Brookline, Mass., is a victim of "woman mania," according to Mrs. Margaret Cooper, who is seeking to have set aside a divorce decree obtained by him. Mrs. Cooper tells of a free-love colony at Niagara Falls, and mentions a number of other adventures of the Captain. Mrs. Cooper says Cooper made a good husband when he was free of tangles with women. She states that he told her once that there was "more hell than fun in this love business" and he wished he wasn't so attractive to women.

CHINESE SEEKING WAY FOR PEOPLE TO EXPRESS WILL

Body Similar To Old Board Of Censors Is Suggested

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, Jan. 17.—Since the formation of the Liang Cabinet there has been much talk of the Chinese popular will, and enlightened Chinese have been endeavoring to work out plans by which the will of the Chinese people could be mobilised in a form capable of exercising a constant and healthy pressure for progress upon the Central Government.

Of these plans the simplest and most concrete is that which proposes that the President or the Premier should invite each of the Provincial Assemblies, Provincial Educational Associations and leading Chambers of Commerce to send a delegate to Peking, all of these delegates to form a body corresponding to the Board of Censors of the old Manchu days and to keep the Government informed of the will of the people on all questions of the day.

The proposal is simple enough and fair enough, and such a body could render invaluable services to the country until Parliament was called.

One obstacle in its way is believed to be the fact that neither the President nor the Premier would sign what would probably be his political death warrant by convoking such a body of men.

Another difficulty in the way of progress is considered to be that the Government might in the end "get to" this proposed body of censors, or interpreters of public opinion, just as in the past it has "got to" every Parliament that was ever elected in this country.

George E. Pettersson, river policeman, charged with being responsible for the death of a Chinese rice boatman denied the charge Thursday in the Swedish Consular Court before Consul General Akerhielm and at the conclusion of the hearing, which was adjourned until Monday on request of Mr. Loh, representing the Commissioner of Foreign Affairs, the defendant was released on his own recognisance.

The hearing was marked by a verbal clash between Mr. H. D. Rodger who appeared for relatives of the deceased Chinese and Consul-General Akerhielm. The postponement was granted to enable witnesses for the prosecution to come from Changshu. The defendant was granted release on his own recognisance because the Consul-General held that no evidence had been presented at preceding hearings of Petterson's guilt.

SEAMEN TO GET GUILDS' HELP; LONG TIE-UP LOOMS

Sailors Have Funds For Making Extended Fight

LIVING COST UP

Effort Being Made To Recruit Substitutes Here

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, Jan. 20.—The strikers' unyielding attitude has been strengthened through the promise of other Chinese guilds to support the seamen to the end. It is affirmed that the funds are sufficient to enable the men to hold out for a considerable period.

The seamen declare that in the event of a mixed crew of other nationalities being employed it would be impossible for steamers on arrival in Chinese ports to discharge or load cargo owing to the sympathetic action of the Chinese guilds which have promised cooperation. The prices of necessaries are rising.

Hongkong, Jan. 20.—Flying the admiralty flag, the Kinshan, from Canton, moored alongside the wharf at 3:35 this afternoon, without any cargo or passengers but with eight bags of mail on board.

On arrival at Canton, the Kinshan buoyed opposite the boathouse. No sampans nor launches went alongside her, so perfect was the Seamen's Guild's influence. The Kinshan thus lay communicationless.

The British Consul-General secured the Military Governor's (General Chen Chiung-ming) sanction to load foodstuffs on board the Kinshan. The fish and vegetable guild and all other regular shippers withheld their shipments through fear of the Seamen's Union.

Eleven members, including the Compradore, of the Chinese Compradore's staff, consisting of over 40 men, who landed in Canton did not return to the ship.

The Kinshan's voyage was abortive. Before weighing anchor for the return journey, the Kinshan, which flew the British flag, substituted it for the Admiralty flag.

Canton reports state that the strikers from Hongkong were banqueted and feasted there, entertainments, including cinemas being arranged for their delegation.

Hongkong, Jan. 20.—The steamer Kinshan is returning from Canton in ballast. Vegetable and fish shippers are afraid to ship provisions and all sampan people in Canton have been ordered not to handle cargo for Hongkong.

Vessels Still Being Held By Hongkong Strike

Aside from the report that efforts have been made in Shanghai to recruit crews of strike breakers to man vessels held at Hongkong no news has been received concerning the tie-up in the Southern port.

Meagre despatches that were received carried no indication that the strike is any nearer settlement than it has been in the past week. While the coastal and river services have been mainly effected by the trouble at Hongkong, the big trans-Pacific liners also are feeling the effect of the trouble in some measure as the Monteagle of the C.P.O.S. and the China of the China Mail are still being held in Hongkong.

The Pacific Mail liner, the Hoosier State has been manned by a crew of Filipinos to meet the emergency and, it is expected will sail from Shanghai close to schedule time, probably on January 27.

Another American liner following the Hoosier State is the Wenatchee of the Admiral Line which will not be effected by the strike as it has an all-American crew and will sail from Shanghai on January 29.

The Bay State comes on its maiden trip to the Far East for the Admiral Line on Monday and is due to sail on Wednesday for Hongkong. The Bay State has a Chinese crew aboard.

Coastwise traffic is practically suspended. The Kwongsang, a Jardine steamer, left Thursday

One of the most difficult things with which to dispute the right of way on Nanking Road is the four-ton motor truck. Even when one isn't disputing it's difficult. Whenever the traffic policeman isn't looking it swoops and swerves and swings about in a manner which makes it as hard to dodge as a shroff just this side of China New Year. Often it misses you, but the driver never gets discouraged. There's always somebody else just ahead and he philosophically figures that you and he will meet again anyway.

JAPANESE GIVE BIG WELCOME TO MARSHAL JOFFRE

Famous French Soldier Enthusiastically Greeted At Tokio

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, Jan. 20.—The Montcalm on board which Marshal Joffre arrived in Japan with a mission, entered the harbor of Yokohama at 10 a.m. today led by the Kongo. After exchanging salutations with Lieut.-General Watanabe, the Chief of the attache to Marshal Joffre, Mr. Inouye, the Governor of Kanagawa, Mr. Kubota, the Mayor of Yokohama, and French Ambassador to Tokio and others on board the Montcalm. Marshal Joffre with Mme. Joffre, Miss Joffre and attaches went on a steam launch and landed, later the party left for Tokio while the French national anthem was being played.

Upon arrival at the Central railway station at Tokio, Baron Goto the Mayor of Tokio, as well as the leading civil and military officials enthusiastically welcomed the party which left the station for the residence of Baron Iwasaki.

Both in Yokohama and Tokio the reception of the party was very enthusiastic. The naval aviation corps welcomed the party with aeroplanes made in France and the boys and girls of the primary schools, carrying flags of France and Japan, lined the streets, which gave Marshal Joffre much pleasure.

Marshal Joffre is the guest of the Imperial House for five days, after which, for three weeks, he will be the guest of the Government.

Tokio, Jan. 20.—Newspapers here, in their editorials today, publish words of welcome in honor of Marshal Joffre, paying a high tribute to him, especially for the meritorious services rendered by him to France and the Allies during the battle of the Marne River. The Tokio Nichi Nichi says:

"Though Japan has not such deep political relations with France as with Great Britain and the United States, her cultural relations with France it may be said, are closer than with the other two countries. The people of Japan fully understand and have a high opinion of the Great national character of the French. The visit to Japan of the Marshal is a matter which the Japanese at large welcome with all their hearts, and we hold the belief that it will have a very good effect upon the friendship between the two countries."

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Nagasaki, Jan. 20.—Marshal Joffre arrived here at 11:40 this morning and landed at 11:50. He was enthusiastically received by large crowds including school children. He is now on his way to Tokio.

Australian Loan Fully Taken Up

London, Jan. 19.—The £5,000,000 Commonwealth of Australian 6 percent loan has been most amply covered and the subscription list closed in advance of the appointed date. The market expects that subscribers will only receive a percentage of their applications. Dealings in this issue commenced this morning, when quotations steadily advanced to about 1 percent premium.

London, Jan. 19.—It is understood that the underwriting is proceeding of £30,000,000 worth of local loans at 3 percent. The price of the stock is £57.

Hope Lives Eternaler In The Chinese Breast

By Elsie McCormick

China is preeminently the land of the undying hope. It is also the country where everybody has a childlike confidence in the belief that Mrs. G. Luck is just waiting for a chance to come up and pin a pansy on his chest. Why it should be so we can't quite determine, because there is a far larger proportion of blue cotton and half-filled rice-bowls in most Chinese lives than there are garments of rainbow, and the number of those who have found any unclaimed pots of gold are as rare as billet-doux in an Old Ladies' Home.

Yet practically every Chinese and every foreigner who lives in China long enough to learn the difference between a shroff and a mafoo becomes imbued with the hope of winning all his heart's desires by the turn of a number or the hoof-beat of a horse. Foreigners give weeks of thought twice every year to the spending of nebulous fortunes which they intend to win on the Champions' Sweepstakes; and when this event is too distant to make an immediate appeal to their imaginations, they chase the butterfly-winged goddess across the Kiangwan Race Course, buy a typewriter in order to win a Ford or a Ford in order to win a typewriter—we are not sure which—and invest their extra cash in saving societies which pay no interest, but which offer a monthly chance on a capital prize.

ALL HOPE TO WIN

A foreigner at home would realise that he had about as much chance to win the Champions as a person has of extracting sealing-wax from a trained seal, but in China he finds himself wading pocket-book deep in the current optimism and cherishing a secret belief that he wears a horseshoe on his brow.

Chinese optimism shows forth most conspicuously at the semi-annual race-meets, when several merchants in the city invest $10,000 in ten dollar tickets, but its strength at this time is due to a daily workout at the mah-jongg board and frequent exercise on the stock-exchange and in the lotteries.

Facing the French Concession at the Avenue des Deux Republiques are twenty or more gilt-lettered and red-draped palaces of optimism, where the rainbow's pot of gold is popularly supposed to maintain headquarters. We don't know how many dreams of flame-colored limousines, diamond-studded sing-song girls, thermos-bottles for the entire family, and a perpetual diet of birds-nest soup have come to life and then died in those joy-tinted precincts, but we suspect that if dream-corpses were material, there would be an unprecedented demand for coffins.

Bearing in splashing characters a pious description of its qualities as a benevolent society, each lottery shop raises its gaze heavenward, but keeps its hands within easy reach of the cash drawer. Maybe, if hope is more sustaining than rice, as some students of human nature claim, the lottery shop is engaged in real benevolence. But the initiation fee to this particular Band of Hope absorbs so much wage money needed by the ladies of the family for velvet head-dresses or jade toothpicks, to say nothing of such details as rent or fuel that its benevolent properties are very much obscured.

THE LOTTERY GAME

There are about twenty-five lotteries in China, each one of which sells approximately 50,000 tickets monthly. A conservative estimate would therefore place the number of buyers at a million a month, and when one considers that while many tickets are purchased whole, others are divided into tenths, the real extent of commercialised optimism becomes apparent. The chance of winning the Sweepstake becomes in comparison as easy as the shaking of the right number when the dice have been trained.

The lottery-habit, like opium smoking, is not indigenous. This particular method of wooing the Lady Luck was imported from the Philippines some twenty years ago, where the Spaniards had introduced it along with cock-fighting, high sleeves, and the duenna system.

When the game first immigrated, the Chinese modified it somewhat by issuing pasteboards containing more numbers than a meal ticket and punched after somewhat the same fashion. Buyers punched fifteen numbers on their card, gave a duplicate to the lottery man, and then compared their choice with the numbers marked on the master card when the drawing took place. Those whose numbers all coincided or came nearest to coinciding with the original shared the first prize, and other prizes were awarded according to a system as complicated as a combination button-hook and raisin-seeder.

BLANK TICKETS

We remember purchasing those elusive little pasteboards from the laundryman when we went to school in California. We always marked them according to an elaborate system that included our age, the date of our birth, our waist-measure, and our latest average in an examination, but we never won anything. At least, the laundryman always assured us that we hadn't. People with undue optimism are probably still marking the cards at home, though they disappeared from China in 1911.

One of the earliest actions of the Republic was the abolition of lotteries. For a time they remained quiescent, until a wooer of Lady Luck had the inspiration to reopen the game on a basis of alleged philanthropy. In the guise of a benevolent society, a lottery began to sell return tickets to the end of the rainbow under the protection of the French authorities and business proved so good that benevolence became as popular as epaulets in a Chinese brass band. The garment of philanthropy wore so thin in spots later on that the lotteries were evicted from both the International Settlement and the French Concession, but just about this time Chinese officials opened their arms to the patrons of charity. Hence the Shanghai branches of the lotteries moved to the Chinese side of the Boulevard des Deux Republiques, where they continue to dispense tickets and good cheer from a background of red drapery.

HOW PRIZES RUN

The lotteries bear the names of provinces and are of two types. The "big-prize lotteries"

HUGHES OPENS FIGHT ON SPECIAL PRIVILEGE AGREEMENTS IN CHINA

American Secretary Reaffirms Position Taken Last Summer When Dispute Arose With British Over Radio Contract

JAPAN WILL STAND BY THE DEMANDS

Willing To Treat With Any Power That Has Objections, But Is Opposed To A General Discussion In The Conference

BY FREDERIC WILLIAM WILE
(Trans-Pacific News Service Exclusive To The China Press)

Washington, Jan. 19.—America today fired the opening gun in what appears to be a determined campaign to obtain revisions of treaties growing out of the Twenty-One Demands.

Secretary of State Hughes, addressing the Far Eastern Committee of the Conference, reaffirmed America's adhesion to the doctrine of the "open door." He based today's declaration on a note which the State department had addressed to the Chinese minister at Washington in July of last year in connection with the American Federal Telegraph Company's resistance to the monopolistic procedure of the British government in China.

What Secretary Hughes said in July and what he has reiterated today in effect is that the United States could not recognise any special rights or privileges in China which abridges the rights or privileges of American Citizens.

The prediction is volunteered tonight in competent quarters that Secretary Hughes's definition will be approved by the other eight powers including China, which comprise the Far Eastern Committee.

Today's session of the Far Eastern committee is the first in a fortnight, the right of way having been given to the Shantung discussions between Japan and China, A spokesman for the Japanese delegation indicated tonight that Japan opposes any consideration of the twenty-One Demands by the conference.

OBJECT TO DISCUSSION

The Japanese say that any power that objects to the 1915 treaties with China may do so directly with Japan, but Japan is unwilling to engage in a general discussion on these treaties in the conference.

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Jan. 20.—Though the lists of treaties and agreements both secret and open relating to China, which the Powers have been requested to compile will be informal, the fear is expressed that the preparation of the lists will delay the work of the Conference because a considerable time must elapse in order to enable the delegations to obtain descriptions of the conventions from their various Home Governments. It is expected that a resolution requesting the above lists will be adopted today as yesterday's agreement was only tentative.

During the discussion Dr. Wellington Koo particularly referred to the treaty with Russia, negotiated in 1894 by Mr. Li Hung-chang, as typical of these secret treaties concluded not only by China with other Powers but also by other nations among themselves regarding China. Dr. Koo declared that as a Chinese delegate he was prepared to submit to the Powers all the understandings affecting China whether secretly or openly negotiated.

CARRIER PROVISO

An important article in the Nine-Power Naval Treaty, which deals with aircraft-carriers, prohibits carriers exceeding 27,000 standard tons. In order to effect economy, the Powers may use for the purpose of carriers, any ships either constructed or under construction which would otherwise be scrapped under the Treaty. These measures were most carfully scrutinised by the Japanese and British naval experts owing to the importance of aircraft in future wars.

Washington, Jan. 20.—The Powers have consented to prepare a list of all agreements relative to China.

Washington, Jan. 20.—One of the British spokesmen yesterday evening indicated that Great Britain did not care to assume the responsibility of dropping Article Four of the Open Door resolution, nothwithstanding the fact that it was Sir Robert Borden who submitted the motion whereby the Article should be laid aside.

The spokesman added that the Article was thoroughly approved by the British but was in no way a part of the Open Door proposition. He indicated that the Article was thoroughly worthy and would perhaps come up again before a final settlement of the

JAPANESE TRADE ENVOYS URGED TO HALT ABUSES

Head Of British Chamber Asks For Trademark Reforms

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 19.—The Japanese Commercial Mission today had a conference with the London Chamber of Commerce, which subsequently entertained the visitors to luncheon with traditional civic hospitality at the Draper's Hall. Mr. Stanley Machin, President of the Chamber, suggested as subjects for discussion the improved cable communications, the question of trade marks and the misrepresentation of goods and said that the Chamber also had to point out that goods were not always equal to the sample.

Mr. Takuma Dan replied briefly, after which a discussion on trading relations ensued.

A distinguished company including Baron Hayashi were present at the luncheon where Mr. Dan, replying to a toast, emphasised the incomparable advantage accruing to personal contact between parties in the pursuit of the establishment of common aims. He said that the Mission could not possible take umbrage at some of the hard things they had been told in the sincere desire to remedy faulty relations.

Mr. Isaka also spoke and warmly dwelt on the great assistance and generous hospitality everywhere extended to the Mission in its tour of Great Britain. He declared that the Mission was determined to improve the organisation of the Japanese Chambers of Commerce and the trade mark question in connection with which they had heard bitter complaints, and said that they would do their best to remedy the grievance which was harmful to Japan's good name. Mr. Isaka expressed pleasure at the fact that British business-men had favored a liberal co-operative policy regarding the world's industry and commerce, which certainly was the wisest course for every nation.

The company including Ministers, leading officials, bankers and industrialists were later the guests of Baron Hayashi.

Chita Delegates Deny Repudiation Of Pact Allegation

The delegates from Chita who are attending the Dairen Conference expressed the greatest surprise when it was brought to their attention that newspaper reports in Shanghai had credited them with a denial of all knowledge of the existence of the documents mentioned by the Chita delegation at Washington, relating to an alleged secret treaty between Japan and France.

On Thursday the representatives of the Dalta News Agency, in Shanghai, in response to an inquiry as to whether the Chita delegation had taken this action, received this telegram from Dairen: "The Chita representatives at Dairen have not made any statement regarding the Franco-Japanese agreement."

COAL STRIKE LOOMS

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Jan. 19.—Mr. Herbert Hoover today declared that the stage appeared to be set for a general strike in the bituminous coal industry at the end of March when the wage contracts expired.

Far Eastern questions was reached by the Conference.

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Jan. 19.—It is reported that any direct reference to the 5-5-3 capital ship ratio has been omitted from the final draft of the Naval Treaty owing to Japanese sensitiveness although the ratio has been indirectly provided for by specified tonnage figures.

LIST OF SHIPS

Washington, Jan. 20.—The Naval Limitation Treaty which is practically completed gives America a total battleship tonnage of 500,650 tons with the following ships: Maryland, California, Tennessee, Idaho, New Mexico, Mississipi, Arizona, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, Nevada, New York, Arkansas, Wyoming, Florida, Utah, North Dakota, Delaware and one other. Great Britain retains 580,450 tons with the Royal Sovereign, Royal Oak, Revenge, Resolution, Ramillie, Malaya, Valiant, Barham, Queen-Elizabeth, Warspite, Bendow, Emperor of India, Iron Duke, Marlborough, Hood, Renown, Repulse, Tiger, Thunderer, King George V, Ajax and Centurion.

Washington, Jan. 19.—The Far Eastern Committee today adopted substantially as presented the British and American resolutions regarding the Chinese Railways and then took up the question of existing commitments which was the last item of the agenda. The committee agreed that "all nations represented at the Conference should furnish it with a list of their treaties and agreements both secret and open relating to China."

Washington, Jan. 19.—Japan has renounced the Japanese rights over the former German cables at Kioachow. The cables are the Chefoo-Tsingtao and the Tsingtao-Shanghai lines laid by the Germans. The Tsingtao-Sasebo cable laid by the Japanese will be operated by a joint Sino-Japanese commission subject to the existing contracts to which China is a party. The Japanese have agreed to hand over to the Chinese, subject to fair compensation, control of the two wireless stations at Tsinanfu and Tsingtao, immediately after the Japanese troops have been withdrawn.

FRENCH BALK

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Jan. 19.—When the French delegation, in the Far Eastern Committee, renewed their objection to reopening the whole field of concessions in China through the fourth article of Mr. Hughes' proposal, Japan seconded them and the article was finally entirely rejected.

The Chinese however reserved the right to call up the question later, but the general impression of the delegates is that it has been permanently side-tracked as far as the Conference is concerned. Many delegates opposed the provision on the ground that it might lead to an almost endless enquiry into the validity of the maze of economic arrangements throughout China.

On behalf of the American delegation, it is said that the eliminated article is not considered of vital importance, as the remaining provisions permit the examination of existing concessions where both parties are agreed.

In the course of the open door discussions, Sir Auckland Geddes placed on record a formal statement of the attitude of the British delegation saying:

"It is clearly understood that there is nothing in this resolution which affects in one way or another the existing international consortium or any other form of voluntary co-operation between private financial or industrial groups of different countries which may join together in a manner not involving a monopoly or infringement of the principles recognised by the Conference in order to furnish China with some essential service, most efficiently and economically to be provided by united effort".

Washington, Jan. 18.—The Far Eastern Committee has postponed consideration of the Twenty-One Demands until the Shantung question is settled. Secretary of States Hughes and the American delegation definied the American policy regarding the "open door" in China.

HUGHES' POSITION

Secretary Hughes said that his definition is based on a note which he, as secretary of state, sent Minister Alfred Zee on July 1, wherein he declared that the United States does not associate with any arrangements seeking to establish a special right or privilege in China which would abrogate the rights of China's subjects or those of citizens of other friendly nations.

The purpose of the United State, he said, is neither to participate in nor acquiesce in any agreement whose purpose is to establish superiority of rights in China nor which might seek to create such a monopoly or preference or would exclude other nations from undertaking a legitimate trade or industry and not participating with the Chinese government in any case as a public enterprise.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Jan. 17.—In a telegram dated January 13 and addressed to the Cabinet and Wuchaopu the Military and Civil Governors of Anhuei express appreciation of the important bearing which the Pacific Conference has on the Shantung question, and of the importance of the Shantung Railway question itself.

They proceed to point out that the Government, delegates and people have recently shown the greatest interest in bringing the railway under Chinese control. In order to achieve this end, they consider it advisable to avoid the complications involved in a foreign loan or an undertaking to employ foreign officials, and call upon the people to demonstrate their patriotism as the national rights, sovereignty and freedom of the Chinese people are involved in the question.

They add that China ought rather to discuss this matter within the country than sacrifice any vestige of her rights to foreign Powers. They conclude by requesting that early consideration may be given to the views thus expressed.

(China Press Service)

Washington, Jan. 18.—The preamble to the naval or five-power treaty, which, it is understood, is complete with the exception of the article relating to fortifications, says:

"The United States, the British Empire, France, Italy and Japan, desiring to contribute to the maintenance of general peace and to reduce competition, do hereby resolve with a view to accomplishing those purposes to conclude a treaty to limit their respective naval armaments."

Article One lists the ships to be kept by each power, the United States to retain six vessels above 32,000 tons each, two of 31,400 tons each, four of 27,000, 26,500 and 26,000; two of 21,825, and two of 20,000, a total of 500,650.

Article Nine deals with aircraft carriers and says that no aircraft carrier exceeding 27,000 standard tons shall be acquired or constructed within the jurisdiction of any contracting power, with the exception that any of the contracting powers may without increasing their total tonnage build not more than two aircraft carriers each of a tonnage not to exceed 33,000.

Singapore May Be British Fleet Base

(Trans-Pacific Public Ledger-Ex-(Public Ledger—Trans-Pacific—

(China Press Service)

Washington, Jan. 19.—Attention in the matter of the naval treaty has swung over to the British desires regarding fortifications.

The British want Singapore exempted from the general terms of the pact, thus adding weight to previous reports that Great Britain intends to make Singapore a great fleet base. The British also desire to have their South Pacific holdings exempted.

The whole status of the naval treaty is dubious, with indications that America does not desire to expedite the matter, preferring delay until she sees what she can get in the matter of a settlement of Far Eastern difficulties.

Russian Paper Raises $1,300 For Famine Relief

Approximately thirteen hundred dollars for Russian famine relief were realised from the special famine relief number of the Russian paper, the Shanghai Life, which was published Sunday last.

Mr. M. L. Goorman, general manager of the publication in a statement issued yesterday expressed gratification at the results obtained from the Famine Relief Number. His company, he writes, is particularly appreciative of the spirit of benevolence and generosity shown by the foreign community of Shanghai.

The special edition of the Shanghai Life, which was done on special paper and profusely illustrated, will be mailed to every newspaper office, public and government in the Far Eastern Republic, Siberia and Russia.

As soon as all the subscriptions and donations are collected, Mr. Goorman states, full and due acknowledgment of the sums will be sent to foreign newspapers for publication.

Girl Delegate To Geneva Tells Her Experiences

Before a representative audience which filled Martyrs' Memorial Hall yesterday afternoon Miss Zung Wei-tsung gave her impressions of the International Congress of Working Women and the International Labor Conference which she attended in Geneva last summer. On the platform were also Mrs. H. C. Mei, Chairman of the International Committee of the Y. W. C. A., who introduced the speaker; Mrs. T. C. Chu, representing the Shanghai Woman's Club; Mrs. P. Peebles, representing the British Women's Association, and Mrs. F. J. Raven, representing the American Woman's Club.

In introduction Mrs. Mei said that when the International Congress of Working Women asked the Y. W. C. A. of China to send a Chinese woman to the second meeting of the Congress to be held in Geneva, the invitation was very carefully considered both on the score of expense and of the responsibility involved. Since, however, there was no other organisation which was in a position to send a delegate, rather than have Chinese women unrepresented as at the previous meeting they decided to accept the invitation. Fortunately Miss Zung, a member of the staff of the International Committee, a trained journalist, and deeply interested in the industrial status of women workers was able to make the trip.

QUESTIONED IN ENGLAND

Miss Zung said that in passing through England on her way to Geneva she was often asked why there should be an International Congress of Working Women when an International Labor Conference already existed. Her reply was that so many women and children were affected by industrial legislation that it was necessary for them to gather together to discuss the conditions under which they worked, to decide on policies and to present recommendations on their special interests to the general Labor Conference, following immediately upon their meeting.

At this Congress every delegate was asked to report as to whether the country she represented had adopted the recommendations passed by the previous Congress held in Washington. Miss Zung said she waited dumbfounded, not knowing what she should say if called upon, wishing that the Congress would let her discuss China's marriage customs, its folk songs—anything but industrial conditions, but she was obliged to report on factory conditions in her home. "I could not tell them anything very cheerful. I told the truth," said Miss Zung "and when I sat down I felt as if I had been speaking in the language of the middle ages, telling things which should long ago have been out of date and obsolete."

WORKERS NEED PROTECTION

"They say," continued Miss Zung, "that history must repeat itself, but I hope that is not true and that China may learn from the experience of others. Our factories have as up-to-date machinery as anything I saw abroad, but they have no provisions for the safety of workers. Under the guidance of Miss Constance Smith, chief woman inspector of factories in England, I visited many factories and in all of them I could not help noting the careful safeguarding of the worker. It would be impossible there, even in the poorest managed factory, for a woman to be caught by the hair and crushed to death in a machine as happened so recently in China and is constantly happening."

The Congress was very much interested in the working women of China and sent a letter by Miss Zung saying in part:

"We realise that the industrial development of China has been different from that of the Western peoples; nevertheless we feel that there are many things we may agree upon and we want the women of China to know that at our first Congress we adopted the principle of the eight-hour day, forty-eight hours a week. We feel that if this is made known it will lead to shorter hours for Chinese women. We also protested against night work for women and advocated one day's rest in seven. We hope that women in China will do their utmost to bring about this rest period. If improvement in industrial conditions does not effect Chinese women as well as the rest of the world it will be of no real good."

JOURNALISTS SCARED HER

Miss Zung naively related her experiences with reporters abroad. When they surrounded her she was frightened and tried to escape, but they asked her many innocent questions, as for instance, "How do Chinese girls wear their hair?" "How do you?" "Do any of them bob their hair?" When she replied that some few Chinese girls bobbed their hair, but that there were many different styles, she was startled to find herself reported as saying that all Chinese girls were bobbing their hair, and that report was spread widecast. It the same way when asked whether any Chinese women were suffragists she replied in the affirmative and mentioned the action of the Canton women who demanded "votes for women." Much to her horror the story came out that 700 Chinese women had marched upon the Shanghai Municipal Council demanding the right of suffrage!

Miss Zung closed her address by declaring with much feeling: "China desires to move with the world. She will not take delight or pleasure in being an obstacle in the way of other nations, but sincerely wishes to improve industrial conditions."

for Swatow and will there await instructions. If the strike is settled, the steamer will go on to Hongkong. If not orders may be given for a return trip to Shanghai.

Three Indo-China Steam Navigation Company steamers, long overdue at Shanghai, are still at Hongkong. They are the Waishing, due here three days ago, the Hangsang, scheduled to arrive here last Wednesday and the Choysang, also overdue three or four days.

The P. and O. liner Nagoya left Hongkong Thursday at 9:30 o'clock and is expected here Sunday and the Inaba Maru, from London, is due Monday.

(China Press Service)

Hongkong, Jan. 20.—It is freely predicted here that the shipping strike will not be settled until after the Chinese New Year as the shipping companies are not disposed to make concessions and the striking Chinese are being well cared for by their unions and guilds. As soon as men leave a steamer in the harbor they are taken in charge by the organisations and are supplied with food and lodging.

The season of the year, when trade is practically at a standstill, accounts for the attitude of the companies. It is not expected that passenger trade will be seriously hampered, as the P. and O. liners, with crews of Lascars,

FORMER STUDENTS OF CHEFOO HOLD GATHERING HERE

Excellent Program Of Music Is Followed By Period Of Social Festivities

There was a fine gathering of former students of the Chefoo Schools in the hall of the China Inland Mission last night. Several members of the Faculties on vacation happened to be in Shanghai and were likewise present. The Principal of the Boys' School Department and his wife received the numerous guests as they arrived. It is thought that they will not be returning to Chefoo until after a long leave, as the health of the former has been unsatisfactory and necessitates a prolonged absence from the work of which he has had the oversight for thirty years. All present signed the list sheets so that the newly elected Committee of the Chefoo Schools Association will be able to record who attended.

There was an excellent program of music and the social gathering was much enjoyed, various games and stunts being heartily entered into. The honorary secretary of the Association gave a short statement relative to the activities of the Committee for the past year and the honorary treasurer presented his accounts. The Committee for the ensuing year was then elected. A statement regarding the funds of the proposed Memorial Hall which it is intended to erect in commemoration of the thirty-four former students who laid down their lives in the Great War was listened to with much interest. The honorary treasurer mentioned that there was a sum in hand of about $6,700.00, the contributions towards this amount which the ex-student body had made totalling in the neighborhood of $2,000.00. The original estimate was for $8,000.00 which it must be understood would not mean the erection of an elaborate hall with Corinthian arches, etc. It would be a plain building, but one which would meet the very pressing need for an auditorium, the lack of which was being felt increasingly as the years passed by.

The speaker told of the placing of the handsome tablet in the big schoolroom and mentioned that the present students had undertaken the responsibility of keeping it well polished. It was to be understood that the Tablet, the combined gift of Mr. W.B.O. Middleton, an old student and of Mr. R. B. Mauchan was to remain permanently on the wall where it had been fixed and was not as some seemed to have thought, to be replaced when the hall was built inside it. The photos of the honored dead, which up till the erection of the tablet, hung on the wall of the schoolroom were now taken down and arrangements were being undertaken to have them fixed in an album and the album put permanently in the Library. A new item of interest mentioned was the intimation that a souvenir album of the schools containing between seventy and eighty photographs is being contemplated and is expected to make its appearance as a publication during the coming months.

Refreshments were served during the proceedings and after a very successful evening the gathering terminated with the Principal taking Prayers in school fashion. During the course of the evening a flash light photograph was taken. The hall was tastefully decorated

As Benjamin Franklin aptly stated:—

"A policy of life insurance is the oldest and safest mode of making certain provision for one's family. It is a strange anomaly that men should be careful to insure their houses, their ships, their merchandise, and yet neglect to insure their lives, surely the most important of all to their families, and more subject to loss."

GEN. WU PEI-FU TAKES SALT TAX FOR TROOPS' USE

Seizes Whole Of Hupeh Revenues—Liang May Quit

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, Jan. 18.—General Wu Pei-fu has given to the Salt Gabelle Inspection Bureau of Hupeh telegraphic orders in the name of the Inspector General of Hupeh and Hunan to seize the salt taxes of the whole province of Hupeh to be employed as military funds.

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, Jan. 17.—That Liang Shih-yi will resign in the near future and that Dr. W. W. Yen will act for a while as premier is the tenor of the reports received here from Chinese sources; General Chang Tso-lin is reported to have informed both the Premier and General Wu Pei-fu that he does not intend to back up the present Government.

Mr. Liu Feng-wu, the emmissary of the Premier to discuss the situation with General Chang, has returned, according to the reports, and brings with him the news disconcerting as far as the Premier is concerned that the Mukden general is determined not to support the new Cabinet. Chang said according to the report, that he had felt that the appointment of Liang Shih-yi would improve the situation, but that things on the contrary are going from bad to worse and that Liang has made a worse mess of things than his predecessor.

Liang, however, according to some reports, is still hoping that the fat may be pulled out of the fire and he has ordered the Ministry of Communications to send out the telegram that contains his program for the redemption of the Kiaochow-Tsinan railroad, believing that if the thing is put up to the people squarely he will be able to regain the confidence that he has lost.

The President, Hsu Shih-chang, is afraid that a change of ministers at the present time will only make the situation more serious and is reported to be in favor of giving Mr. Liang Shih-yi a leave of absence that will extend over the Chinese New Year, and have Dr. W. W. Yen act as Premier during Liang's absence. When the New Year crisis is over Liang will be permitted to resign and the cabinet will be reorganised. Dr. Yen, however, is reported to be unwilling to take the temporary job, and wants to resign from his position as minister of foreign affairs.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Jan. 17.—General Chang Tsung-chang, one of the leaders of the Mukden faction though himself a native of Shantung, has arrived in Peking to study the political situation here. General Chang, who is a personal friend of ex-Premier Chin Yun-peng, is expected to proceed later to Tientsin in order to ask General Chin to exert his influence with Mr. Chang Chih-tang to dissuade the latter from persisting with his recent reactionary movement.

(China Press Correspondence)

Hankow, Jan. 20.—Wu Pei-fu has delivered an ultimatum to Peking which may mean a new government in China, if a report current here today is to be believed.

It is said on good authority that Wu has received favorable answers from the Tuchuns of six provinces and as a result has delivered the ultimatum that he will form a new Government unless Liang Shih-yi resigns.

Honan, Hupeh, Kiangsu, Shantung, Shensi and Kiangsi, are the provinces said to have been united under the Wu Pei-fu banner to form the nucleus of the new government.

According to the reports received here, Wu's ultimatum was sent from Loyang to President Hsu Shih-chang and to the Doyen of the Diplomatic Corps.

No confirmation of the reports could be obtained tonight.

NAME NEW HEAD FOR ST. JOSEPH'S CATHOLIC ASS'N.

The Rev. Father J. A. Croke, S. J., has been appointed spiritual adviser to the St. Joseph's Catholic Association by the Rt. Rev. P. Paris, Bishop of Silando, who is retiring from the office of president owing to the strain upon his health.

Mr. Harold C. Norman, late organising and executive secretary, and chairman of the Wayport Rooms and House committees, having been nominated for the office of president by the Executive Council, has been installed in that position by Bishop Paris.

The Executive Council is composed as follows: Messrs. K. Begdon, J. C. Colter, M. Gibson, W. O'Neill Honorary Secretary, F. L. Smith, T. Tatlock, and C. J. White, Honorary Treasurer. A vice-president will be nominated by the President at the next meeting of the Council.

Funeral Tomorrow For Compradore Of Many Years' Service

The funeral of one of the veteran compradores of Shanghai, the late Mr. Tsang Sui-chow, known among foreign merchants as T. Suichow, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mr. Tsang died at his residence, 18 North Thibet Road, on Jan. 7, as the result of rupture of blood vessels.

Mr. Tsang was connected with the late British firm of civil engineers and architects, Messrs. Morrison and Gratton, for the exceptional period of 31 years, having served 11 years as construction draftsman and 20 years as compradore. At the age of 13 he entered the Kiangnan Arsenal as a student of mechanical drawing and six years later joined Morrison and Gratton. During the past eight years of his retirement, he was engaged in real estate business.

Mr. Tsang died in his 58th year and is survived by his widow and two sons, several daughters and a number of grand-children. The eldest son, Tsang Han-son, is at present compradore of the American-Oriental Banking Corporation and his younger brother, Tsang Han-ding, is assistant chief storekeeper of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway.

Charge Of Robbery Denied By Chinese

A continuance was granted in the Mixed Court yesterday in the case of a Chinese who is charged with having committed an armed robbery at 1009 Markham Road in which a private ricsha coolie, employed by Detective Inspector Reeves, was strung up by his thumbs by three marauders while they ransacked the house.

Mr. F. J. Schuhl appeared for the defendant who stoutly denied details of an alleged confession which the police aver he made after he had been recognised in Chapel and arrested.

Hope Lives Eternaler In The Chinese Breast

sell chances on $40,000 for six dollars; their small prizes sisters hold out a promise of about $15,000 for two or three dollars. The number-punching system has been abolished; and the earlier form of drawing resumed. Drawings usually take place in an amusement resort, though this doesn't guarantee that the blindfolded boy doesn't hold the right figure in his hand before he even delves into the box. Several of the fortune-making institutions gave face to their philanthropic claims by contributing to Famine Relief and the fund for the Kansu earthquake sufferers, but the amount of their gift compared to their profits bore about the same relationship as the size of a cream cheese to the kind that occupies a whole grocery store window.

We don't know whether or not the idea was circulated by lottery owners with a prejudice against paying out first prizes, should they accidentally be won, but there is a popular superstition that the winner of a first prize on a whole ticket always dies within three months of his streak of luck. Many instances are cited to substantiate this idea, beginning with the sudden demise of a Shantung Road merchant fifteen years ago. This ought to be sufficient to scare the winner of a whole prize into turning back a section of his ticket to the company in order to cheat Nemesis, or at least to invest at about a thousand dollars of it in ghost money.

Corresponding to the shifty-eyed, shabbily-dressed individuals who peddle banned lottery tickets at home in a well-worn satchel are a whole regiment of Chinese who invade tea-shops, wine-houses, and foreign longs in order to sell their little strips of red paper. There have been many cases of petty merchants and clerks going bankrupt because they tried to keep up with every lottery every month, one of the most recent cases being a clerk who bought tickets monthly for three years without winning even a prize for a terminal number.

Dreams are costly, whether smoked from an opium-pipe or evolved from a lottery ticket before the drawing, but somehow the unaccounted-for optimism prevalent in China makes every dreamer believe that his dream is all dressed up around the corner, just ready to take a ricsha ride with him.

Germany Plans Intensive Drive For Russ Trade

(Rosta News Agency)

Moscow, Jan. 15.—A telegram from Hannover, Germany, says that the British circles in Berlin state that Lloyd George will do his utmost to solve the Russian problem within the next few months. Germany is working out an elaborate plan of activities in Russia, where she sees her only salvation from economic ruin.

The German press is full of articles devoted to the Russian problem. The articles express the opinion that if Germany does not reach an understanding with the Allies on the Russian problem, the near future will witness a gigantic struggle between England, France, Germany and Russia, the outcome of which will be more decisive to the new situation in Europe than the Versailles Treaty. The Soviet Government desires cooperation with Germany more than anything else. This, perhaps, is responsible for the desire of Lloyd George to speedily solve the Russian problem.

CHINESE PLAN POPULAR LOAN TO BUY RAILWAY

Thirty Millions Is Goal Of Promoters Of Movement

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Jan. 19.—A society to raise funds for the redemption of the Shantung Railway was formed at a joint meeting here of the General Chamber of Commerce and official and unofficial educational bodies, provincial guilds, and other popular bodies.

As an outcome of the meeting, a message has been telegraphed throughout China and to Chinese organisations throughout the world asking assistance in the aim of raising $30,000,000 before the close of the Washington Conference.

Messages were also sent to the Chinese delegates at Washington asking them to negotiate upon a basis of use of this fund which, it is hoped, will be raised. Societies with a similar object in view are being formed in the provinces.

Foreigners fear that great popular disappointment may result from the movement, as in the case of the popular fund for the resurrection of the nation which was raised under Liang Shih-yi's auspices during Yuan Shih-kai's regime.

China's direct appeal to London in the Amoy dispute has met with a stiff response from the British foreign office.

RUSSIAN WOMEN GIVEN SENTENCES FOR SHOPLIFTING

Two Russian women who were convicted on charges of shoplifting yesterday in the Mixed Court were each sentenced to serve four months in jail to be followed by expulsion. They were found guilty of having stolen a number of raincoats from the store of Whiteaway, Laidlaw and Company and the sentence was given by British Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Li.

One of the women, Lydia Vasilieva, a 17-year old girl, collapsed when the sentence was translated to her and had to be carried from the court room. She was revived in a few minutes.

The girl, with Mrs. Antonie Bulkowa, a widow of 17 Range Road, went into Whiteaway, Laidlaw and Company's Store Thursday, according to the testimony of three witnesses, and looked at several articles. One of the clerks saw Mrs. Bulkowa attempting to put one of the raincoats under her coat and another in her muff, and called the police. The woman denied that she was stealing the coat. She explained that one had fallen from the table while she was examining them, and that she was picking it from the floor when she was charged with stealing it.

The girl denied that she had been in the store at all, but all three employees of the store identified her. Three raincoats valued at $159.50 were recovered, but one coat is still missing.

HOOSIER STATE IS NEXT STEAMER SAILING FOR U.S.

Following the sailing yesterday of the Taiyo Maru of the T.K.K., the next steamer that will take mails to America will be the Pacific Mail liner Hoosier State, sailing about January 27, unless steamers held by the strike at Hongkong are able to reach Shanghai before that date. It is announced that the Hoosier State will not be delayed by the strike.

The steamer Wenatchee of the Admiral Line, also unaffected by the strike, as it carries an all American crew is to follow the Hoosier State on January 29.

One mail consignment from America arrived yesterday on the T.K.K. steamer Siberia Maru and another large consignment is to be received today of the Empress of Russia of the C.P.O.S., which is due to arrive off Woosung at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The tender with incoming passengers from the Empress of Russia is due at the Customs Jetty about 8 o'clock this evening. The outbound passengers for the steamer are to take the tender leaving at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon.

OFFERS NOVEL DEFENSE

Li Lau-sung, one time employed as a clerk for the China Garage, denied charges of theft made against him yesterday in the Mixed Court and offered the statement that he had left the company's employ a year ago when the theft was committed to 'go look for the thief.' One Faung Ts-lien, who was charged with complicity in the theft—which amounted to the sum of $16—has been serving four months in jail, having been convicted. The case of Li Lau-sung has been continued.

PUBLIC SCHOOL BOY IS WINNER OF SCHOLARSHIP

S. Green, 17-year-old student of the Public School for Boys, who lives at 35 Broadway, has been awarded the Peace Memorial Scholarship, valued at £1,215 and applicable in any approved university of any country where the lad desires to study.

The award was made by the Chairman and Secretary of the Shanghai Municipal Council as trustees, following a report made by the committee in charge of the Hongkong University Matriculation examinations. Green took his examinations last November.

The scholarship, the gift of an anonymous donor, provides first-class passage, and £300 annually, payable in quarterly instalments. If the student's work is satisfactory at the end of the three-year course, the balance of the money is handed to him. The scholarship is open to British boys of China and Hongkong.

Green has been a student of the Public School for Boys for the past six years and a half, and came to Shanghai from Hongkong. He will take a course in electrical engineering but has not decided where he will continue his studies.

SHIPPING BOARD BOAT, RAMMED, IS LIMPING TO PORT

The United States Shipping Board steamer West Chopaka was rammed and partly disabled by an unknown vessel while en route to Shanghai from Dairen and is making slow time into port, according to wireless messages received here yesterday. The steamer is operated by Struthers and Barry and is on her maiden trip to the Far East.

The West Chopaka left Dairen Monday evening and is expected to dock at the Shanghai and Hongkew Wharf at Pootung early this morning. The steamer received a large hole in the starboard side as the result of the collision. It is expected that she will make port without serious difficulty and repairs will be made here.

The steamer has on board 1,700 tons of coal oil, turpentine and general cargo for Shanghai and left San Francisco on December 12, calling at Los Angeles, Honolulu, Yokohama and Kobe before going to Dairen. From here the West Chopaka goes to Hongkong and Manila.

The extent of the damage done could not be learned and the agents are unable to fix a date for the probable departure.

Kenseikai Party, Led By Baron Kato, Tells Policy

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Jan. 19.—The chief opposition party, namely, the Kenseikai Party, at a meeting today announced its platform which, inter alia, includes: Universal suffrage, administrative reform, regulation of prices, reduction of taxes, development of education, and limitation of armaments with a view to administrative financial readjustment and an improvement of national industry.

Baron Kato, the President, delivered a speech wherein he expressed hope and confidence of success of the Regent's administration and regrets at the death of Marquis Okuma. He deplored the Government's failure to evacuate Siberia, where Japan had gained nothing but the hostility of the people and the suspicion of their nations. He expressed appreciation of the spirit of fairness and justice which had inspired President Harding to call the Washington Conference, though he questioned the methods of the Japanese Delegation in abandoning the minimum of a seventy ratio.

Regarding the Quadruple Entente, he said it gave an assurance of the desire for peace on the part of the big Powers. That was the real merit of the Agreement, which contained little of practical significance beyond a desire to abrogate the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

He declared the Government had failed in the Shantung negotiations owing to its precipitate action in proposing the restitution of the railway.

Recs-Xaviers Meet Today In Scottowe Cup Replay

Engineers And Police Billed For Friendly Match On Polo Field

But one formal football match is scheduled for this afternoon, the replay between the Recs and the Xaviers of their 1-1 tie of two weeks ago in the first round of the Scottowe Cup Competition. All other matches are friendly.

The football program, in spite of its informal nature furnishes some good matches. The Recs-Xavier match of course will be sharply contested. The latter, strengthened by drawing from the Portuguese club played the Recs to a standstill in the first round and may be counted on again to give a strong exhibition. Both teams today are playing practically the same lineup used in the first round tie.

Other matches include a game between the Engineers and the Police on the Polo field; a Rangers-Navy match on Widow's Monument field. Color teams match by S. F. C. players on their own field, and at Hongkew Park a game between the Jewish Recreation Club and Thomas Hanbury School.

The following players have been announced by the various clubs:

Marine Engineers—A. McLean, V. Elliott, C. H. Johnson, R. Tomlinson, G. Crawford, G. Norris, A. Clark, Mr. Moodie, J. Palconer, T. Wade, H. C. Rowson. Reserves: R. Condie, A. Davies and M. D. Marshall.

S. F. C. Colors.—Messrs. R. Phillips, W. J. Brown, T. L. Rawsthorne, J. Hinton, G. E. De Man, R. B. Roach, A. Deer, J. K. Twing, J. G. E. Koning, E. T. Nash, and A. H. Leslie.

S. F. C. Whites—Messrs. D. E. M. Drummond, M. Tonkin, J. E. P. Harris, P. Isherwood, J. Robertson, M. Seredkin, A. Whittaker, L. Goldman, G. F. Forshaw, T. E. Hammond, L. J. Coulcher. Reserve: R. H. Norton.

Jewish—Whiteman, Fuxman, Blumenthal, Weinberg, R. J. Moalem, Levis, B. Pfeifer, A. Pfeifer, Fiene, Feingold, J. Z. Moalem. Reserves: B. Naer, Brunner, A. Ezra.

Rangers: J. M. Pearson, A. P. Goldman, L. G. Day, J. E. Henry, G. J. Day, A. E. Johnson, H. H. Nash, J. Marcher, M. Broomhall, K. C. Evans, C. W. Smith. Reserve and Linesman: N. S. Jacobs.

TIENTSIN BEATS PEKING TWICE AT ICE HOCKEY

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, January 20.—Tientsin's star Ice Hockey combination trimmed the American Marines on Saturday evening to the tune of 8 goals to nil, while on Sunday morning the Peking Ice-Hockey Club seven went under before a slightly different Tientsin combination, 0 to 11.

Peking didn't have a chance in either game, as the Tientsin players outclassed the athletes from the Capital in team-work, speed and condition.

The Wharton Cup match is only three weeks away, and it looks like easy money for Tientsin at the time of writing.

Daily practices are to be held on the Peking Club rink henceforth, if all the players attend these practices regularly Peking should play at least creditable hockey for the rest of the season.

Artillery Plays Scottish Sunday

The following team has been selected to represent the Shanghai Scottish in their match against the Field Artillery Battery in the S.V.C. Football Competition to be played tomorrow at 3 p.m. on the S.F.C. Ground on the Race Course.

Messrs. J. M. Pearson, C. Wilkie, T. W. R. Wilson, H. Wallace, J. Robertson, A. A. Ewing, B. Lawrie Smith, J. K. Ewing, J. Falconer, S. Alcorn, A. H. Leslie. Reserves: Messrs. C. E. Glass, J. R. Harder, R. L. Stewart.

Stable Applications Close Tonight At 6

Application for stable accommodation at the Shanghai Race Club may be filed until 6 o'clock this evening, according to an announcement made by Secretary A. W. Olsen.

Stable leases expire on January 31 and new leases come into force on the first of next month.

Harriers Trial This Afternoon

There will be a training run for members of the Shanghai Harriers Club, over a selected course in the Kiangwan district starting from the American School at 3 p.m. today.

The packs will be arranged by the Club's Captain and Vice-Captain. There will also be a team race. The run takes place wet or fine.

TIENTSIN ICE CARNIVAL

Members of the Tientsin Skating Club are enjoying splendid skating and the fancy-dress Carnival given recently was one of the most successful affairs ever given by the club. Prizes were awarded for the most original and most beautiful costumes in addition to several prizes for various races and other events on the program.

Auto Committee Meets Monday

The executive committee of the Shanghai Automobile Show will hold a meeting at the offices of Messrs. A. R. Burkill and Sons, in the new N. K. K. Building at the corner of Canton Road and the Bund on Monday afternoon.

The meeting is called for 5:30 o'clock and the accounts for the big exhibit will be closed. It is probable that plans will be made for a dinner to be held after the China New Year.

Robert McLean Is Winner Over Baker

Boston, Massachusetts.—Robert McLean met Donald Baker of New York at the Boston Arena in two speed-skating races and won both. The American speed skating champion had no difficulty at all in winning the 220-yard dash in 19 1-5s., but the 440-yard dash was rather close, McLean winning by about one yard in 38s.

This was the feature of the opening night of the season of 1921-22. Henrik Peterson of St. Moritz, Switzerland, gave an exhibition of fancy skating. Mrs. J. A. Blanchard and N. W. Niles, who represented the United States in the fancy skating events in the last Olympic Games, also gave an interesting exhibition.

Louis A. Servatius, at seventy-six, is the New York State three-cushion amateur billiard champion. His is a most extraordinary accomplishment. M. W. Leake, whom he defeated, is also over seventy. Iowa To Meet Yale At New Haven

Chicago.—The University of Iowa's football team, 1921 champions of the Western Conference, will appear on the football schedule of Yale, the game to be played at New Haven on October 14.

A game also was arranged with Ohio State University to be played at Columbus, on November 18. Ohio state was the runner-up for the Conference title, in the season just closed.

ZENZO SHIMIZU WEDS DAUGHTER OF JAP COUNT

Kobe, Jan. 15.—A well-attended wedding was solemnized yesterday at 2.30 p.m. at the Hibiya Dai Jingu (Marriage shrine), Tokio, when Mr. Zenzo Shimizu, the brilliant Japanese lawn tennis player who played in America for the Davis Cup was united to Miss Setsu-ko Fukushima, daughter of Count Fukushima. The bridegroom is 30 years of age while the bride is 26.

The bride was dressed in the customary Japanese wedding kimono while Mr. Shimizu wore the conventional European marriage garments. A reception was held the same evening at the Imperial Hotel, Tokio, and over 100 persons were entertained with a banquet.

Mr. and Mrs. Shimizu will leave shortly for the United States. Mr. Shimizu is attached to the New York branch of the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha.

Dartmouth Wants Boxing Included In Its Sports

An agitation has been started at Dartmouth to influence the Athletic Council toward recognising boxing as a minor sport. Undergraduate interest in boxing has increased a hundredfold during the past two years and it is believed that the Green should be interested in the intercollegiate ring contests.

Eddie Shevlin, welterweight champion of New England, is the Dartmouth boxing instructor and declares that a strong team could be developed at Hanover this year. All the holders of the college championships determined at a boxing carnival last year are now in college and would form a nucleus for a strong team.

McGILL VISIT STATES

Athletic officials of McGill University of Montreal, Quebec, have accepted the invitation of Syracuse University to send the McGill varsity football team to Syracuse, New York, next fall. The University of Vermont also is negotiating with McGill for a game.

Anderson Meyer Forfeits To American School By Non-Appearance

The Rowing Club split even in their basketball games last night, the Strokeside winning over the Public School at the club by a score of 20—14, while the Bowside was losing to Shanghai College on the Yangtszepoo floor, 13—20. The third scheduled game, that between Anderson Meyer and the American School was forfeited 2-0 to the School, on the Hong team's failure to appear.

The Strokeside won over the School on teamwork, coupled with fine playing on the part of some of its members. Goldman and Johnson in particular stood out. For the School the usual combination gave Levis and Johansson the more chances at scoring. The score at half time was Strokeside 8, School 4.

Scores were:

Will Two Tragedies Make a Real Love Comedy After All?

How a Fussy Contract Divides Marilyn and Jack, Joined by Bonds of Sympathy, by Famous Beauty and, Perhaps, by "Love at Second Sight" While Broadway Holds Its Breath

The Professional Marilyn Miller Whose Dainty Beauty Has Conquered New York.

Frank Carter.

MARILYN MILLER, famous dancing beauty, and Jack Pickford, movie star, are apparently about to be married. Two tragic occurrences, parallel in some respects, though widely different in others, made her a widow and him a widower only a short time after their respective marriages.

Olive Thomas, noted screen favorite, and wife of Pickford, died in Paris in September of last year, after taking bichloride of mercury.

Frank Carter, of the speaking stage, husband of Marilyn Miller, was killed in an automobile accident in May of last year, while motoring from Wheeling to Philadelphia to visit his wife.

Pickford retired for a time from the movies and sincerely mourned the beautiful girl bride who had been taken away from him by a tragic and violent death.

Miss Miller shed bitter tears over the death of her youthful husband, which had also been caused by a tragic occurrence, though of a different kind.

The beautiful girl widow and the youthful widower met. They had suffered similar losses, and each was able to sympathize with the other. Pity and sympathy, according to poets, are akin to love.

Did the sympathy which they felt for one another in their strangely similar bereavements flower into a new love destined to bring forgetfulness of former griefs?

Rumor answers in the affirmative, and despite the fact that both deny there is any positive engagement, those who claim privileged information say that Jack Pickford and Miss Miller have been seeing a great deal of each other of late and that an engagement is really on, though the public is not yet to be taken into the couple's formal confidence.

The comedy angle of this rumored new romance, it is said, will be furnished by a battle between Cupid and the courts, between youth and love on the one hand and heavy legal artillery on the other, to determine whether the motion picture star may lead the reigning Ziegfeld queen to the matrimonial altar.

When Marilyn Miller danced last Winter in the Ziegfeld Follies her salary was $2,500 a week, and as the star of "Sally," in which she has scored her biggest triumph, she is probably getting an even larger sum. Her suite at the new Hotel Ambassador is one of the most luxurious in the world.

Jack Pickford, brother of Mary Pickford and screen star in his own right, also earns sums of money that would make the average successful business man turn green with envy.

Neither financial nor personal complications stand in the way of the rumored match. The bar across the gateway to this new romance is a contract signed by Miss Miller and held by her determined manager, Flo Ziegfeld.

Miss Miller recently signed an agreement not to marry for four years, and that agreement, Ziegfeld says, must be observed. On the other hand, attorneys for the beauty and others who have interested themselves in her predicament, say that such a contract never will be held legal. Any agreement not to marry, the legal lights say, is an agreement made "against public policy" and would be so held by the courts.

Back of this romance, in which Cupid may furnish the comedy by snapping his fingers in the face of the solemn courts, are two of the most poignant tragedies which have occurred in theatrical circles in recent years.

The career of Olive Thomas, deceased wife of Jack Pickford, courted favorite of Broadway and toast of the smart set, was like a highly colored, tragic romance by Victor Hugo or Eugene Sue.

One afternoon in 1913, when Florenz Ziegfeld, leading connoisseur of feminine beauty, was preparing to put on the first of his famous "Follies," an eighteen-year-old girl appeared at his office and timidly proffered a letter of introduction from a noted artist.

The caller was Olive Elain Duffy, who had come to New York a short time previous to make her way after a brief experience as a $3-a-week saleslgirl in a Pittsburgh department store.

The Pittsburgh beauty asked for a job and got it as "Miss New York" in the first "Follies." Then began the meteoric career that transformed little Olive Elain Duffy into Olive Thomas, the toast of Broadway. Her first stage job paid her $75 a week. When she left the stage to go into motion pictures she was earning $2,500 a week.

Every newspaper reader in the world is familiar with the events which led up to the tragic death of the beautiful screen star in Paris September, 1920. She and her husband, Pickford, were occupying a palatial suite at the Ritz. One Sunday night, accompanied by several friends, she went to Montmarte, centre of the shocking night revels which have earned for Paris its reputation as one of the wickedest cities. The party first visited the "Dead Rat," most famous of all the Montmarte resorts. She appeared to be in the highest spirits, though so tired that some of her intimates warned her that she would collapse if she insisted on burning the candle at both ends.

Not heeding this, she remained at the "Dead Rat" until the closing hour, 1 A. M., and immediately after started on a taxicab round of the clandestine resorts, which always open to the magic key—gold.

At 4 A. M. she arrived back at the Ritz, where she found her husband in a reproachful mood. After listening to his remonstrances she was apparently seized with a fit of despondency. She went into the bathroom. A moment later, with a piercing scream, she rushed to the bedroom crying to her husband:

"I've taken poison!"

She had swallowed bichloride of mercury. Physicians responded to the quick alarm, and every effort was made to save her life, but she died soon afterward in a hospital.

The body was brought back to America by the sorrowing husband, and now rests in the Pickford mausoleum in Woodlawn Cemetery, New York.

Since his wife's death Jack Pickford has not appeared in any new films, though he did assist in directing his sister, Mary, in her recent production, "Little Lord Fauntleroy."

It was a death tragedy of a totally different kind that broke up the marital romance of Marilyn Miller and her husband, Frank Carter, notable of the speaking stage—a romance which began in a cafe in Soho, London, several years ago and ended in a secret wedding in New York on May 24, 1919.

Nearly a month later a telegram announced to Flo Ziegfeld and the world that his dainty dansetise of the "Follies of 1919" had become the bride of the young actor. Miss Miller continued in the "Follies" and her husband also continued in his theatrical career.

On May 10, 1920, not quite a year after the marriage, Carter was killed in an automobile accident while driving through the country from Wheeling to Philadelphia to join his wife.

Carter had been appearing on the road as the juvenile lead in the musical comedy "See-Saw," which closed in Wheeling. Carter was driving a new $10,000 car, which he had just bought as a present for his wife. It was monogrammed "M. M. and F. C." He was moving at high speed when he came to an unexpected curve. He clapped on the brakes, causing the car to jam and swerve into a bank on the side of the road, where it overturned, pinioning him under the front seat and killing him instantly. News of the accident, but not the fact that her husband was dead, was telephoned to Marilyn Miller, and she left at once for Cumberland, Maryland, the town near which the tragedy had occurred.

For more than a week afterward she did not appear on the stage. Then she rejoined her company and finished the season, but night after night when she went from the stage to her dressing room she would passively sit or stand, tears rolling down her cheeks, while the colored maid who had been her faithful attendant for seven years changed her costume and led her out to the wings again.

Since Frank Carter's death Miss Miller has been active in many charitable and welfare enterprises, which she has endowed in his name as a lasting tribute to his memory.

Except for the one tragedy of Frank Carter's death, life has been gay and marvellous for this dainty little dancer, who has had and still has the whole world at her feet. All her life she has known the stage and played a part on it. Her father and mother, with her two sisters and herself, were known in vaudeville as the Columbians, and travelled all over the world.

Marilyn Miller is "100 per cent American," having been born in Louisville, Ky., but when she made her first stage appearance—at the age of five—the Columbians were in England, and the town constable came to the theatre and said: "It's an outrage that a mere baby like this should be made to dance. We will not allow it. You must not let her appear on the stage again until she is at least sixteen."

The baby's heart was almost broken. She did so love to dance in that fluffy skirt. In fact, she refused to be consoled unless she could wear that bee-autiful skirt. So each night she accompanied the family to the theatre, was dressed in her ballet costume, and then, in the top of a big theatre trunk she would fall asleep—a tired, broken-hearted little Columbine.

Jack Pickford, Rumored Engaged to Marilyn Miller.

But Marilyn could no more live without dancing than she could without eating, and it was not many years before she was a full-fledged member of the family troupe. One night at a supper club in London she danced her way to fame and fortune through the Shubert route. It was Lee Shubert who saw her that night, and he was so impressed with her charm and her winsome way of dancing that he immediately signed her up for a six-year contract.

Her first appearance in New York was at the Winter Garden in 1914, and she has been gaily dancing ever since. As a Ziegfeld Follies star her fame became world-wide, and her greatest triumph has been achieved in "Sally."

Talk On Chinese Language Heard By University Club

Owing to the absence of Mr. A. R. Hager, who has gone to Manila, Dr. C. T. Wang presided at the annual meeting of the American University Club, held at the Union Club last night when the following officers were elected to serve on the Executive Committee for the year 1922-3: President, Mr. J. B. Powell; Vice-President, Mr. V. Fong Lam; Secretary, Mr. I. B. Sawyer; Treasurer Mr. F. H. Kreis.

In reviewing the work of the past year Dr. Wang expressed the regret that the Club has not done much during this period on account of the frequent absence from town of various members on the executive committee, but he praised the Policy Committee for good work done in connection with organising the lectures on China and the Chinese people and drew attention to the timely help given to the Club by Mr. Kreis taking the place of treasurer on the departure from China of his predecessor. Dr. Wang made an appeal for closer acquaintance between the American members of the Club and the Chinese American returned students, whose number is increasing.

TALK MUCH APPRECIATED

After being introduced with fitting references to his wonderful activities as a young philosopher of China, Dr. Suh Hu delivered an exceedingly interesting lecture on the "Spoken National Language of China." Numerous points of humor and the speaker's charming personality as an orator combined with his mastery of the English language, held the audience spellbound and their sincere appreciation and enjoyment of the long talk was marked by the prolonged applause which brought the meeting to a close.

Dr. Suh Hu sees a great future for the Kuo Yu, the national spoken language because of its increase of spontaneous popularity as could be witnessed by its introduction in primary schools throughout the country and the commercial successes which attended the publication of books dealing with or written in the Kuo Yu.

"Some time ago," said the speaker, "I read a leading article in the Central China Post under the caption 'Has the Chinese language a future?' and in that article it was prophesied that a hundred years hence the Chinese language would be superseded by English. What will happen at the end of this period, the editor of that journal may perhaps not live to see but others will and it will then be found that the national language of China will be the Kuo Yu of which I speak tonight."

WHICH DIALECT?

Dr. Suh Hu points out that there are two essential conditions of the success of any dialect that aspires to the supreme honor of becoming the national spoken language, namely it must be very widely spoken and understood and it must possess so rich a vocabulary as to qualify it for a medium of literary expression. This contention, according to the speaker, is proven by all foreign modern languages and he refers to the Northern, Midland and Southern dialects of the English language which at one time competed for supremacy resulting in the palm of victory going to the midland competitor. After enumerating the distinctive features of the various dialects in China which the speaker put into four groups, the Southeastern, Middle, Northern, and Southwestern, Dr. Suh Hu made an able and convincing defense of his declaration that the mandarin of Peking is entitled to become the national spoken language of China and among the reasons he advanced in support of the claim were the following:

1.—The Kuo Yu is the popular literature of the people, while the Wen Li is the classical literature of the literati.

2.—Peking as the political center, and Northern China as the scene of the invasions of babarians and Mongols, were responsible for the dialectical superiority of mandarin over other dialects for its understandableness.

3.—The Mandarin has been used for the production of China's standard novels which deserve to be ranked with the world's masterpieces of fiction and it has been used by authors to whom Mandarin was not the mother tongue.

SONGS HAVE MERIT

4.—A large contribution to literature has been found in ballads and songs written in Mandarin with literary merits which surprised the scholars. (Dr. Hu said that a collection of these songs and ballads, thanks to the efforts of university students, has been made and will be published in book form.)

5.—The people have brought the Mandarin to its present state of efficiency and usefulness, because the spoken Mandarin has been left alone to work out its own superior features through the disdainful indifference of the learned scholars towards it and it has thus escaped the hampering interference of the premature standardisation by the "wise men" who were responsible for the complications of Western syntax.

Dr. Suh Hu believes that the written language Wen-li which has been standardised by the systems of examinations for civil service will have a long career before outliving its usefulness but he does not agree with those foreign as well as Chinese critics who denounce the Kuo Yu as being an intruder into the literary region that will degrade literature.

Dr. C. T. Wang will be the next speaker on the program of lectures arranged by the Club and will speak in the course of next month on "China's Constitution."

COLD DIMS LIGHTS

Water freezing in the air washer and the carrying of moisture into a generator at the Riverside Power Station caused the interruption in the supply of power for electric lights Thursday night. Twice the Central District and portions of the French Concession were plunged into darkness, the first interruption being from 9:15 to 9:50 and the second from 10:02 to 10:20. Because of building operations going on, the engine room is heated with difficulty.

BENEFIT PROGRAM PLEASES MANY AT THE LYCEUM

A most enjoyable program and one that was attended by an audience which filled the Lyceum Theater was that given by Mrs. J. W. Nicholson and other able local amateurs in aid of the King's Daughters' Convalescent Home for Children yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Nicholson was at her best, which is saying a good deal, in her impersonations and the other artists were excellent in their various capacities. The program opened with three dances from Henry VIII by the British Amateur Orchestra and was followed by the prologue from I Pagliacci given by Mr. H. E. Muriel. Mrs. Nicholson then gave a humorous sketch entitled "Love Affairs," Mrs. M. P. Walker rendered a violin solo and Mrs. Bowey sang Benberg's "Nymphs and Fauns." Drs. Bolton and Billinghurst and Mrs. Wilson had a trio number on flute 'cello and piano and numbers by the same artists, the last named trio excepted, figured also in the second part of the program. The sketch which was to have been given by Mrs. Nicholson and Mr. E. P. Graham Barrow had to be left off the program owing to Mr. Graham Barrow's illness.

The entertainment was given under the patronage of Sir Everard and Lady Fraser, American Consul-General E. S. Cunningham and Mrs. Cunningham, Judge Skinner, Turner and Mrs. Skinner Turner, Judge Peter Grain and Mrs. C. S. Lobingier.

American Fiction Analysed In Van Doren's New Book

(Foreign Press Service)

New York, Dec. 15.—An illuminating book—The American Novel—has been written by Carl Van Doren, literary editor of the New York Nation, and is reviewed in the current number of the New Republic by Robert Morss Lovett, one of the editors of that magazine. In his comment on Mr. Van Doren's book, Mr. Lovett points out that the novel, which has been the "most significant form in American literature, the one which has invited most original effort, and which has possessed the longest and most continual intellectual development," provides Mr. Van Doren with material not only for a genuine history of literary development but for an interesting comment on the successive phases of American life.

"Mr. Van Doren notes two matters as the substance of early American fiction, the frontier and the settlement," says Mr. Lovett. "Of these the first is incomparably the leading one. The most important fact in the history of the United States has been the westward moving frontier, and this has furnished the most characteristic theme in American fiction. The early settlements stretched in a thin line between the forests and the sea, both elements furnishing necessary subsistence and inviting to adventure. Mr. Van Doren says:

"'There is a closer analogy between the geographic and the imaginative frontier of the United States than has generally been realised. As the first advanced, thin, strangling, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, widening from Canada to Mexico, and reaching out in strips, the other followed, also thin and straggling, but with an incessant purpose to find out new territories which the imagination could play over and claim for its own.'

COOPER'S NOVELS

"It is therefore natural that the first comprehensive American novelist (James Fenimore Cooper) should have divided his attention mainly between the mountains and the sea, and it is suggestive of the recession of the frontier that Cooper's epic novel of American life, the Leatherstocking Tales, should find its conclusion, artistically if not chronologically, in the The Prairie.

"As in the novels of Cooper and his successors the form is determined by character, the dominant figure of the hero, and its material is the testing of character by the obstacles and dangers of untamed nature and savage men, so in the later American novel of industry and finance, the form is determined by the personality of the exploiter and conqueror. And in another way the type of the pioneer persists. At first the pioneer of fiction was conceived essentially in his character as a forerunner of society; but his temperament and training turned him into an extreme individualist, and association with primitive nature and its inhabitants gave him something of the noble savage. He came to hate the civilisation whose advance agent he was, and to find his true passion in the wilderness he was sent to explore. Accordingly we find the protest against society becoming an element in the character of the pioneer, and making him all the more the great romantic figure of American fiction. And this spirit of protest, the legacy of the pioneer, has been maintained in the later versions of the pioneer story, and is one of the most honorable traditions of the American novel.

PIONEER THEME

"The pioneer theme has an indirect relation to the theme which represents the leading motive of colonisation—that of Puritanism. As the pioneer found himself on the border of the greater wilderness, tempting to unspeakable adventure, inviting exploitation and offering limitless reward, so the Puritan found himself on a frontier possessing the same attractions—the frontier of eternity. And both pioneer and Puritan were subject to the same condition—both must adventure alone, and hence with both, individuality came to be the primary source of power. In other words, the individual conscience continued its revolt, and the spiritual life of America continued to abound in eccentric protest and self-conscious isolation. Hence we find as another leading theme in the American novel the adventure of spiritual conquest, the case of conscience. Of course, this theme is not peculiarly American. But partly because of mere geographical remoteness from the intellectual world there is something overwhelming in its emphasis on life, and intense in its penetration. And as a further inter-relation of the pioneer theme with that of the Puritan is to be noted the repressive influence of both. As the pioneer facing the dangers of the wilderness tended to sacrifice all the decoration of life to the necessity of survival, so likewise the Puritan, in a spiritual crisis equally imminent, tended to reduce life to an elemental relation to eternity.

"Mr. Van Doren treats the simple pioneer theme in an admirable chapter on James Fenimore Cooper. The Puritan theme in its essential quality he treats in the chapter on Nathaniel Hawthorne. Among the finely critical passages in which the book abounds there is none more penetrating than that in which he suggests the distinctively national quality of Hawthorne as marked by his treatment of the problem of The Scarlet Letter.

"An ancestral strain accounts for this conception of sin as an affair not of the civil order, but of the immortal soul . . . A Frenchman might have painted the joy of Dimmesdale, the lover, with his forbidden mistress; an Italian might have traced the fierce course of Chillingworth, the husband to a justified revenge; a German might have exhibited Hester, the offending wife, as actually achieving an outer freedom to match that one within. Hawthorne transfers the action to an entirely different plane. Let the persons in the triple conflict be involved as they may with one another, each of them stands essentially apart from the remaining two, because each is occupied with a still vaster conflict, with good and evil as the rival elements which continually tug at the poor human creature. . . . . To the Puritan imagination, journeys begin, not end in lovers meeting. The tragedy of Dimmesdale lies in his defeat by evil through the temptation of cowardice and hypocrisy which are sins. Chillingworth tragically and sinfully chooses evil when he decides to take a treacherous vengeance into his own hands, though vengeance, he knows, is another's. Hester alone emerges from her guilt through her public expiation and the long practice of virtue afterward.'

STILL POWERFUL

"Although the four great novels of Hawthorne have not been equalled by any successor, the tradition of conscience as an element in serious American fiction is still powerful, witness Howells, Henry James, Mrs. Deland, and Winston Churchill.

"A theme which Mr. Van Doren does not explicitly define but which obviously animates much of the more sophisticated American fiction of the nineteenth century was the result of the political and geographical separation of America from Europe, and the contrast in manners, learning, and beauty of life between the land of the pioneer and the Puritan, and his European home lands. This theme is frequently combined with those of the pioneer and the Puritan, thus giving the American an opportunity to show in physical or moral courage a compensation for what he lacks in urbanity and culture. Cooper touched this theme of contrast in Homeward Bound and Home as Found. Hawthorne in The Marble Faun combined it with moral issues. Nearly all Henry James's early novels, those which he wrote as an American novelist, from Roderick Hudson to The Portrait of a Lady are based upon it.

"In Mr. Van Doren's lucid volume it is easy to trace the characteristically American themes in their development through the mass of American fiction. He deals with his five major figures—Cooper, Hawthorne, Howells, Mark Twain and Henry James—comprehensively, understandingly, dispassionately. He has been criticised for a lack of enthusiasm and warmth—but it is obvious that such qualities would have made the book exactly what it ought not to be and is not—a piece of special pleading. Mr. Van Doren's tone is throughout admirable and his attitude finely critical."

Small Dogs Have Edge At Paris Show

Paris.—The Paris dog show, for "dogs de luxe," that is, the thousand and one varieties of lap dogs, has two pets which are causing a stir among the canine gentry of the Bois de Boulogne.

One is a fluffy animal from Thibet which is worn on the left arm and resembles a huge flower and consequently is called a "chrysanthemum dog."

The other is a "butterfly dog," whose body is so diminutive that it is invisible behind its large ears, which have a deep purplish black color with a bright center like a pansy.

The feature of the dogs this year is their small size. They are not considered to meet the requirements of a lap dog if they are not delicate enough to require a plaited ribbon instead of a chain for a leash. For even a heavy watch chain would almost strangle these darlings.

Hoover Predicts Big Coal Strike

(China Press Service)

Washington, Jan. 19.—Secretary of Commerce Herbert C. Hoover today declared that the stage appears to be set for a general strike in the bituminous coal industry in the United States at the end of March when the present wage contracts expire.

Shamokin, Pa., Jan. 18.—President John I. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America today told the Anthracite Wage Convention that if there is talk of a reduction of wages there will be no backward step in the progress of the United Mine workers.

JEWS HERE TO AID NATIONAL FUND BY GIVING BALL

A concert and ball in aid of the Jewish National Fund will be given on Thursday, January 26—instead of the 29th as previously intended—at 9:15 p.m., at the Astor House under the auspices of the local Zionist Association and the "Kadimah."

The Jewish National Fund was founded in 1901 by the Fifth Zionist Congress for the purpose of acquiring land in Palestine as the inalienable property of the Jewish people. In these 20 years the National Fund—like no other Jewish institution—has become universally popular as is attested by the collecting agencies all over the world. Local efforts in the past have been quite satisfactory, the year 1920 being a record one, inasmuch as £12,180.8.3 had been raised and last year one-third of this amount. In addition to the general collections, which are increasing every year (10,000,000 francs in 1920, against £1,000,000 in 1913), the Jewish National Fund is to receive 20 percent of the income of the Palestine Restoration Fund. This would amount to £300,000 in 1921-1922. The urgent practical necessity at all times to have in hand money sufficient to be able speedily to purchase land at reasonable prices when opportunity arises is also a matter that appeals to those outside Zionist ranks. The latest acquisitions of land will absorb the ordinary contributions which the National Fund can expect to receive for years in advance so that for any further large new purchases large new funds must be provided. The report of the National Fund submitted to the recent Zionist Congress shows in the clearest possible way that during the past year this institution has already worked on a large scale—at least in comparison with earlier years and in relation to the limited means available—so that the land in Jewish possession in Palestine during last year has been increased fourfold. But what, it is asked, are the 7,000 hectares of land in the possession of the National Fund in relation to the total area of Palestine, which is about 400 times as great? Hence quite considerable sums will be required in the near future for the purchase of land. In this respect, both for the management as well as for the additional purchase of land, the resolve of the recent Zionist Congress to remove the head office of the Jewish National Fund to Palestine will be of advantage.

At the request of the head office at The Hague a Commission for China has been founded recently, consisting of the following Commissioners: Messrs. E. S. Kadoorie, President; Arthur Sopher, Vice-President; S. J. Solomon, Hon. Treasurer and N. E. B. Ezra, Hon. Secretary. Committee: Mesdames N. E. B. Ezra, H. Finkelstein, R. E. Toeg and Messrs. Albert Cohen and S. E. Missim.

The ball and the concert to be given on Thursday next promises to be a brilliant function for several well-known local amateurs have volunteered their services. There will be a brief address by Rabbi W. Hirsch, B. A., on "The Jewish National Fund; Its Principles and Objects."

All Indians Favor Round Table Plan

(China Press Service)

Bombay, India, Jan. 18.—Representatives of all shades of opinion in India are said to be in favor of the proposals for a round table conference. In a statement given out today Ghandi declared that his followers are prepared to abandon their activities on condition that all prisoners are released and the round table conference is called.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 19.—A telegram from Delhi states that a Democratic party has been formed to [illegible] opposition in the legislative assembly. Fifty members joined in the hope of making an effective debut and passed a resolution condemning the Government policy.

The party aims at securing the status of a self-governing dominion for India, and will conduct an anti-waste campaign in an endeavor to secure fiscal autonomy of the largest measure, provincial automony, the Indianisation of all services and the adoption of every measure calculated to transfer complete responsibility from the Executive to the Assembly.

Woman Conquers Arizona Desert

When Mrs. H. A. Guild of Phoenix, Ariz., decided to "ranch it" on ten acres six miles north of that city the ten acres lay in a strip of desert—and was desert land.

She conquered that ten acres. She made it to bloom with roses—she established a real home in the midst of a strip of soil covered with gray-green cacus and feather leaf mesquite, with ironwood trees and with wonderful white thistle. She put intensive methods to work and coaxed that little farm into a productive mood that supplied the living for three adults.

Mrs. Guild is now the first woman at the head of a state department, being secretary of the child welfare board recently appointed by Governor Thomas E. Campbell of Arizona.

COLLECT FROM GERMANY, FIRST AIM OF POINCARE

New Premier Outlines His Program To Deputies

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Jan. 19.—In the course of a statement in the Chamber and Senate today on the policy of the new Cabinet, M. Poincare said:

"We shall be very happy if the Anglo-French pact, which is destined to consolidate peace, is signed shortly and we have no doubt that as it is to the benefit of both countries, it will be concluded on a footing of perfect equality and will maintain intact the Treaty guarantees. At the same time, we must confer with Italy and Britain with a view to endeavoring to prevent the resumption of Turco-Greek hostilities in the East in order, in accord with our Allies, to reap the advantages of the Angora Convention and finally bring peace to the gates of Europe, which will enable us to carry out with more freedom our mandate on Syria."

M. Poincare declared that Reparations problems dominated everything. If Germany did not meet her obligations, he said, it was the opinion of the Reparations Commission that measures should be considered, including the establishment of an effective control of Germany's budget, paper currency issue and exports, while so long as disarmament and the punishment of war criminals were not carried out, the existing sanctions must be retained and fresh ones taken.

Referring to the Genoa Conference, he said that France would insist, before any discussion, on acceptance or refusal by the delegates of the conditions of the Cannes protocol, and, failing definite guarantees, France would be obliged to resume freedom of action. M. Poincare concluded by appealing to the Senate and Chamber to uphold the rights of France.

VOTE CONFIDENCE

(Special To The China Press)

Paris, Jan. 19.—The Chamber of Deputies today gave a vote of confidence to the Poincare ministry.

WATERWAY PACT

President Host To Large Thro

(Chung Mei News Agency)
Peking, Jan. 17.—The recep of the President of China held yesterday afternoon in palace of the president and attended by more than 500 gue who turned out in spite of bitter wind that swept down f the north.
An entire courtyard was ro in as the reception hall, and r of chairs placed to face a st where Chinese plays were pres ed. To those who came in little late the central figure that of President Hsu Shih-ch seated in a round-backed chair the middle of the center a leading from the main buildin the center of the stage. With during the greater part of performance was one of his gre children, and near him were o members of his family, his w and several children.
The chairs that were placed and are facing the stage were served for the foreign guests, labelled accordingly. Others nea the front were each marked "the diplomatic body" and m a diplomatic body could be s reposing in them. Behind, u the terraces of the houses w inmates of the palaces and soldiers of Hsu Shih-chang's bo guard. Premier Liang Shih-yi with the president, as was brother, Hsu Shih-jang and Dr. W. Yen, and many other tinguished persons.
Four plays were given for guests, though few were able stay to the end of the performa which was only half completed seven o'clock.

High Honor For Marshal Petain

(French Wireless through Reuter)
Paris, Jan. 19.—A decree has been issued appointing Marshal Petain Inspector General of the French Army, that is to say, technical advisor on all matters relating to the preparation of troops and war services.
The French newspapers comment favorably on this appointment. The papers of the Left, like the Ere Nouvell, pay tributes to the modesty, prudence, pacific spirit and organising ability of this great army chief who is so justly popular with the men.

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

January 20, 1922

Spot and forward bar silver were each down ⅛d. in London yesterday.

The New York price declined to 65¼ and the London-New York cross rate to 422⅜.

The official Sterling rate here today was dropped to 3-5⅛, the Gold Dollar rate to 73, the Yen rate raised to 65¼, and the other rates changed in proportion.

The market, in the early part of the morning, was steady with sellers of Sterling at 3-6⅜ for January, 3-5¼ for February and 3-5 for March.

There were sellers of Gold Dollars at 73¾ for January, 72¾ for February and 72¼ for March.

Chinese speculators sold some exchange at even slightly higher rates than these.

In the afternoon, however, banks were good buyers at these rates, and the market closed weak, with buyers of Sterling at 3-5⅝ for January, 3-5¼ for February and 3-5 for March. There were buyers of Gold Dollars at the close at 73¼ for January, 72½ for February and 72⅛ for March.

India and the Continent sold silver in London yesterday, and the market there is reported as closing uncertain.

Owing to interruption of cable communications, no wires have been received as yet from New York.

The Week's Market Report

In their weekly report on the Shanghai Piece Goods Trade, Messrs. Noel, Murray and Company write as follow:

Cotton.—The tendency of cotton is still downwards and in Liverpool yesterday Spot Good Middlings were quoted at 10.28d. March was 10.20d. and May 10.16d. Bombay Prices are Rs. 318 for F. G. Bengals, Rs. 372 for Fine Oomras and Rs. 450 for F. G. Broach. In New York, Spot cotton is down to 17.95 cents, and the forward quotations are 17.64 for March, 17.29 for May, 16.83 for July and 16.23 cents for October.

Home Markets.—Although the Manchester market for early delivery appears to be firmer, some small concessions have been made in the case of shipment about May-June. The allowances have not been large but have run from 1/- to 2/- according to the cloth being handled. America and this market have got away from each other and business has not been possible for some time past; although a fair quantity of American staples have been arriving here of late, these goods are dear in comparison with English markets.

Local Market.—The Chinese are busy preparing for the New Year settlement and have not been entering into new engagements to any extent. Money is in sufficient supply and is procurable at easy rates, so it is said there is every appearance of the end of the year's squaring up being arranged without difficulty, that is as far as the Piece Goods trade is concerned. One of the outstanding features this week has been the good clearance of goods which the buyers have appeared able to finance without trouble and the outlook for them after the festival seems to be bright.

Yarn.—No sales of Indian Yarn have been made, but the mills have sold 3,100 bales forward and 5,000 bales have been taken by the retailers for resale in bundles.

ROSENFELD REPORT

Messrs. A. B. Rosenfeld and Son write as follows in their weekly report on the cotton market:

China Cotton.—The Cotton market during the past week has been practically dead with no fluctuation of consequence, the bulk of the business for the week being chiefly adjustments of deliveries and winding up of accounts for the New Year.

Yarn.—During the past week our market has been quiet and steady with little business transpiring. Prices ruling the same as compared with last week's level.

SPUNT AND COMPANY

Messrs. J. Spunt and Company write as follows in their cotton market report:

China Cotton:—Our market continued in the same position during the past week as last reported and notwithstanding the nearness of the Chinese New Year period, prices remained and continue steady at the close. Hardly any business worthy of record transpired during the period under review and while some weakness was discernable in Mid Americans and Indians such in no way influenced prices on the local staple thus showing the strength of holders who, being aware of the extent of the shortage in this season's crop are retaining their stocks for a realisation of better prices as soon as consumers' supplies need replenishing. How soon such a situation will come about will depend a great deal on the position of the yarn market which, at the moment, shows no very prosperous indications. Tone of the market, steady.

HAIRNET

Messrs. Yannoulates Bros. write as follows in connection with the hairnet market at Chefoo:

Our Chefoo office reports under date of January 13 that the hairnet market is steady with small stocks and a steady but normal demand.

Prices are as reported last but as stocks are small and with the approach of the Chinese New York when the workers cease work for one to three weeks, prices are expected to advance.

Our Chingchowfu (Shantung) office reports January 14 that owing to a heavy buying of Double nets prices advanced by 20 cents per gross. Stocks are not large and holders are looking forward to higher prices.

PONGEE SILK

The China Mercants Pongee Association write as follows in their report on the pongee silk market at Chefoo:

Reports from Chefoo dated January 13, just to hand state that the silk market continues to be very strong and that stocks are getting exhausted.

It is confidently expected that prices will reach higher levels as soon as the Chinese New Year holidays are over.

New Trade Envoy Not To Come Here

E. T. Shaof, the new Australian trade representative in "the East" will not come to Shanghai, according to E. S. Little. Australian trade envoy here. Mr. Little said today that the Reuter's message printed Thursday was misleading as "the East" is considered in Australia as the Strait Settlements, Java, Singapore and Southern Islands. Mr. Little said that announcement would be made shortly of the appointment of a trade representative from Australia to Japan.

American Film Men Pass Through S'hai

With the first moving pictures ever taken from the air in Peking, William Bradshaw and Clifford Blackstone of the Trans-Pacific Films, Ltd., sailed last night for San Francisco on the Taiyo Maru.

The men have taken pictures in Shanghai, Nanking and Peking, filming the United States Marines at drill in the capital.

While in Japan they made a picture "A Trip Through Japan," for the Japanese Government. They expect to show the pictures taken in China and Japan in various cities of the United States.

Peking Plans To Float Bond Issue

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, Jan. 18.—In order to pass the China New Year, the Chinese Government has definitely decided to issue bonds to the value of $14,000,000 with the salt gabelle surplus as security. The reason why this conclusion has been reached is that the original plan of the Government for the issue of public bonds to the amount of $96,000,000 was brought to a deadlock owing to opposition on the part of the foreign ministers of the Powers concerned.

ARBUCKLE TRIAL

(Special To The China Press)

San Francisco, Jan. 18.—The jury which will hear the evidence in the second trial of Roscoe ("Fatty") Arbuckle, motion picture star, who is charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Miss Virginia Rappe, movie actress, was completed today. It consists of eleven men and one woman. At Arbuckle's first trial here, the jury disagreed, one woman holding out for conviction while the remaining eleven members of the jury voted for acquittal.

French Naval Policy

THE naval policy of France has not been officially declared by the French delegation at the Washington conference, and the matter is too important for conjecture, says The New York Times in a recent Editorial. A report that France desired equality in capital ship tonnage with Japan, and equality in submarine tonnage with Great Britain and the United States, was not sanctioned by any one in authority.

The presumption is that the French naval experts were unprepared to present a plan. This is not strange, because the French Government had no settled naval policy when the conference met. During the war France did not complete her five dreadnought battleships of the Normandie class, all of which had been launched before the war began. In 1920 it was decided not to go on with construction.

Two reasons were advanced. If completed and commissioned, these vessels would be inferior as ships of the first line to the best of the British, American and Japanese Navies; again, France, sorely pressed financially, could not afford naval expansion.

The Normandies were to be of 24,502 tons, with main batteries of twelve 13.4-inch guns in three turrets. French naval experts thought at the time that, as naval warfare seemed to be of the future and the lessons of Jutland were still debatable, France need be in no hurry about capital ships. The French Mahan, Admiral Rene Daveluy, was inclined to agree with Sir Percy Scott that the dreadnought as a type of warship was obsolete.

Admiral Daveluy urged the building of submarines, bombing seaplanes, light cruisers and destroyers in great numbers. He held that the geographical or strategic position of France called for the utilisation of flotillas on the sea and in the air. M. de Kerguezec, speaking in the Chamber of Deputies in March, 1920, declared that "the day on which France will be backed by a fleet of 250 to 300 submarines she will be able to contemplate the future without any misgiving whatever."

Later there was a reaction from the Daveluy-Kerguezec contention. In the Summer of 1920 M. Thomson advocated a fleet of capital ships, for a reason given by the new Minister of Marine, M. Landry, that France must again resume her place in the world. Nevertheless, the policy of economy prevailed. Only auxiliaries were authorised, and few of them. The number of ships in commission, including destroyers and submarines, was reduced, and many of those retained were allowed only half the regular complement.

Naturally, when the French delegation appeared at the Washington conference, it was supposed that France was interested more in submarines and aircraft to defend her harbors and coasts than in capital ship expansion.

What the younger officers of the French Navy think the naval policy of France should be was ascertained recently by M. Delpierre, editor of the Moniteur de la Flotte, who sought the opinions of sixty officers de vaisseau. With few exceptions they declared that the naval effort must exclusively aim at supremacy for three classes of weapons, submarines, flying machines and "super-cannon."

Berlin For Shimmy, Paris Opposes It

Berlin, Dec. 17.—The tango and the shimmy are going to dominate the forthcoming dance season in Berlin, is the opinion of well known German dance experts. Berlin's dance craze which is more pronounced than ever, may overshadow even political party feuds and the reparation problem. A popular dancing teacher here, Gudron Heildbrandt advocates the right of German women to dance the modern dances, while another well known German dancing master asks: "Since women lead men in daily life, why have not German women the right to dance?"

Gudrun Heildbrandt, discussing the favorite dances for the coming season, said: "Sentimental people prefer the Boston and the waltz, plegmatic ones the Espagnole, sanguine persons the fox trot and choleric people the shimmy."

While American economic cooperation in Germany's future is still doubted in some circles here many Berliners console themselves with the music of American jazz bands.

THE PARIS VIEW

Paris, Dec. 17.—The fox trot, the shimmy and the one step—in fact, all exotic dances—must go. This is the decision of the Paris Dancing Masters Union, which has approved two new dances which are intended to revolutionise the art of dancing, but which, according to a few persons who have witnessed exhibitions, will tend to turn the dance halls into either modest imitations of German goose stepping or a Swedish gymnasium in full swing.

With persons preferring quiet exercise the new "polka criolla" is expected to win great favor, as it consists merely in the adaptation of the polka's steps to slower music, with occasional turning and side stepping and frequent halts, during which partners courtesy to each other.

But boisterous youth will not "fall for" such an innovation, and so a Paris dancing professor, M. Perrin, has devised something with an element of risk in it to be known as the "balancello"—a sort of rapid fire waltz with plenty of reverses and constant balancing sideward on one foot while the other foot describes parabolic curves, partners balancing in opposite directions simultaneously. The Paris Academy of Dancing recommends this for rheumatics requiring muscular extension, but novices are advised to take their first lesson on unwaxed floors.

Admiral Tsai Interviewed In Washington

BY BOYDEN SPARKES

Tsai Ting-kan says the "g" in his name is hard in the sense that it is difficult for Americans to resist calling him "Tin Can." But Tsai is a good sport and goes Americans one better with a gentle Oriental jibe at prohibition by saying that if it makes them any happier they may call him Tsai Whisky Bottle. Tsai, it may be said, is a tectotaler.

Tsai speaks with the honestly acquired twang of a Connecticut Yankee and the authority of a vice-admiral of the Chinese navy an associate director general of the Chinese Customs Council, an adviser to the Cabinet, an assistant grand master of ceremonies to the President of China, a vice-president of the Chinese National Red Cross and an adviser to the Chinese delegation at the Washington conference, all of which he is.

The Admiral is more than this. He is a fighter, a poet, a scholar by standards Oriental and Occidental, a gentleman and a statesman. He has the fire of D'Annunzio, the vision of Wells, the poise of Hughes and the wisdom of Confucius, and he says China is coming back into the family of autonomous, prosperous nations.

"The only rub," says the Admiral, "is the constitution over which there is a split between the Chinese of the south and the north. That difficulty is near a settlement.

"The southerners want the constitution that was drawn up at Nanking in 1911, when the Manchu dynasty was overthrown and China adopted a republican form of government. The northern government wants modifications of that constitution. Three or four years ago they had a conference in Shanghai, and both sides were near agreement concerning this and other matters when they split again. This time the troublesome point was that of provincial autonomy. The northern government felt that this would cause the breaking up of China, but now the Peking government, which is the government of the north, has agreed to this, and the provinces are nearly unanimous on this point.

"But the southern government has now advanced another platform. It desires, before reconciliation, that the northern government repudiate the twenty-one demands which the Japanese made, and also wants cancellation of all other treaties and agreements made between the northern government and Japan during the World War. If this is done the southern government will agree to a union. The southern government contends that the twenty-one demands were forced on China without the sanction of parliament. That is where the question rests now.

"If the Peking government is successful at the Washington conference it will expedite a settlement of China's internal troubles. Before I left China I heard that the Japanese government was willing to modify, if not cancel, the twenty-one demands, retaining in the modification only a very few points. The Liberals, or peace party, of Japan disapproved these demands.

"Approaching each other in a friendly spirit, Japan and China, I believe, could adjust this affair in a fashion that would please not only those two countries, but also the entire world.

"A total cancellation of those demands would prove to be great statesmanship on the part of the Japanese, for it would result in the cementing of the two Asiatic nations in friendship."

Admiral Tsai knows a great deal about China, but he also understands America. He is sixty years old now, so in 1873, when he came to the United States for the first time, he was a lad of twelve, a tiny queue-wearing ambassador of the Celestial Empire. That was immediately after the Tai Ping rebellion, when China sent 120 young students to America to become versed in the ways of Western culture. About eight years later the Chinese government suddenly awoke to the fact that by this action it had done something akin to opening Pandora's box. The students were recalled, but the damage had been done.

"During these years I studied in the primary schools of Springfield, the grammar schools of Hartford and the high school at New Britain. I also spent one term at Grandy, a small Connecticut town. Some of the students did not graduate, but most of them did before we were recalled. The excuse was that we were being Americanised. Of course we were. We should have needed to have been pretty wooden to have avoided such a result. None of us was a flint stone."

How those young Chinese, by now unskilled in the elaborate native rituals of politeness, must have shocked their elders when they did return! At any rate, young Tsai's family decided that the navy would be an excellent place for him.

"I joined the torpedo school at Taku, at the mouth of the Pai Ho. Major Mannix, of the United States Marine Corps, was the instructor. From there I went aboard a Chinese training ship to finish my naval education. It was an old wooden frigate. From there, in 1883, I went to Port Arthur to study fish torpedoes under a German. In navigation I was instructed by Captain Rogers, and was finally examined by Admiral Lang, who was then commander-in-chief of the Chinese Emperor's navy."

When the Chino-Japanese War broke out Tsai, a lieutenant commander, was skipper of a torpedo boat. He fought in the battle of Yalu. Telling about this a few days ago, Admiral Tsai betrayed some emotion by rising from his wicker chair and beginning to pace the floor in one of the smaller rooms of the great stone dwelling, at 2215 Massachusetts Avenue, that is the headquarters of the Chinese delegation. Tsai is a small man physically, with hands and feet of almost delicate proportions. His stubbly gray hair was on end, and his trousers were belted with a narrow silk sash, the only touch of the Orient about his costume.

"I was commanding a torpedo boat at Yalu. We were not totally destroyed. Let me think how to say it. We were worsted, because we had a clumsy formation, a defective formation. We went into action in a line abreast, with our two most powerful ships in the middle. See here."

The Admiral held up his hands so that his ten fingers were in a line. Then he maneuvered them right and left, being careful to keep the ends of his digits abreast.

"That was the idea of Commodore Lui. You see how difficult it is to handle ships in that formation. When they turn the speed of each has to be graduated, so that one on the outside of the line must move at full speed and the one in the center act as a pivot. However, we had those two 7,500-ton ironclads in the center of the line. Each fired 400 shots at the Japanese ships and one had a fire in her bow, yet they managed to get back to Port Arthur after the fight.

"The Japanese were quick to take advantage of that clumsy formation and, as I said, we were worsted. Admiral Kabayama, of the Japanese fleet, was aboard an auxiliary ship. I had three torpedoes, two of which I fired head on, and they missed. I reserved one until the flagship presented its broadside. Unhappily, it was set too deep, that torpedo, because the auxiliary ship's hull was not so low in the water as a regular warship's would have been. My last torpedo passed harmelessly under the hull of the Japanese admiral's ship. Afterward he said that he never had believed in a higher spirit until then. When he saw that the torpedo, its path betrayed by its wake, had missed he accepted God.

"From my post I saw that ship heel over as the crew rushed to the far side to escape the first results of the expected explosion.

"The boiler of my torpedo boat was penetrated by a shot, and we no longer had steam. With my crew I jumped into the sea. It was January, and water on that side of the world is as cold in winter as is the case over here. I was captured.

"The Japanese who had met at Weihaiwei asked me to agree, if released, to promise not to fight again during the war. I told them that a naval officer was trained to fight for his country and that the moment they released me I should rejoin my country's forces again.

"'In that case,' said the Japanese, 'you go as a prisoner of war to Japan.' I said: 'All right.' Then I went to Japan.

"The Chinese fleet in Weihaiwei surrendered. Admiral Ting committed suicide. So did other officers of the fleet. Then in the temple in Osaka where I was held prisoner I learned that the Chinese government had put a price on my head. I had not kept to the code. So I swallowed some opium. Some of my fellow prisoners, captured in Korea, had some and gave me sufficient to end my life. But the Japanese, finding me unconscious, pumped all the poison out of me, and so I am still here on earth.

"When I was released I went to Formosa and then to Hongkong, where under the British flag I was comparatively safe from the edict which provided that I was to be without trial summarily decapitated wherever found. It was in 1895 that I landed in Hongkong under the British flag and from then until 1902 I devoted myself, all my time, to the study of Chinese and English literature. My life was forfeit, but still I studied.

"I could have gone back though, for in 1898 Li Hung-chang—the statesman so well known to Americans—asked me to organise a police force in Kwangtung, where Canton is situated. I declined the offer.

"In 1903 I joined the Chinese commission that came to St. Louis. That Missouri city does not know the Chinese admiral, for instead of using my own name I went there as Chang Yaw-tong, my pen name which is also my wife's name.

"I have other names, for that is the custom of China. I have my private name. I have my official name. I have a pet name, a married name, and when I was born I was given a milk name. Seems odd to you, doesn't it?"

In China, the admiral explained, only parents and brothers and sisters address a child by his milk name. At school he has another name which is used by classmates and teachers. When grown up there is a social name used by society at large. For his official career a man normally takes his school name. When he dies he is given another name in reverence.

"It would have been an impertinence for me to have addressed Li Hung-chang so, although he was so addressed in America. In my dealings with him he was Shao Chuan, but if he had grown tired of that he might have changed it. Now that he is dead China speaks of him as Li Wen-chung, which means 'the literary and patriotic.' It is really a posthumous title."

But finally China decided that the head of Tsai would do her more good if it remained on his shoulders. In 1905 Yuen Shih-k'ai telegraphed for Tsai to join his service. This Chinese statesman was then viceroy of Chihli which includes within its borders Peking. Tsai became his English secretary, was pardoned so that no longer was there an open season on his neck throughout China. A year later his naval rank was restored.

"In those years that I was under the ban of imperial displeasure I made great progress in the study of Chinese philosophy," said Admiral Tsai. "I devoted myself, also, to casting out of my mind the useless old and replaced it with the useful new. I have never given up those habits of study. In China, even now when I am sixty, I devote the time between 7 and 9 every morning to study. I have translated many Chinese poems into English. I hope to do much more literary work."

The leaven of Western thought introduced into China by those students who had been recalled from America and other nations in 1881 was working. Yuan Shih-k'ai had retired from public life, and Tsai was in the Ministry of the Navy under Prince Tsai Hsun when there were murmurings of revolt. That was in 1911. Yuan Shih-k'ai was called from retirement to cope with that revolt. Tsai became his aide-de-camp, with the rank of captain in the navy. Presently Tsai's chief became Prime Minister and generalissimo and regent over the boy Emperor, Ling Yu.

Li Yuan-hung was leader of the revolt, which was growing in strength. Dr. Sun Yat-sen had returned to China and was elected Provisional President at Nanking. Then began a parley between the Manchu government and Sun Yat-sen as leader of the republican party. This ended when Sun Yat-sen withdrew in favor of Yuan Shih-k'ai as Provisional President. In the election that year Yuan Shih-k'ai was elected President for a term of five years. During that term until his death, in 1916, Tsai, now an admiral, remained with him as his English secretary.

"What part did you play in the revolt, Admiral?" Tsai was asked.

"A very important part," he responded. "I cut off Yuan Shih-k'ai's queue. The rest of us had all shorn our heads of these evidences of Manchu domination.' Only the President hesitated.

"My associates said: 'It's up to you.' I spoke to Yuan Shih-k'ai, but he evaded me. It means much to him, that queue. It was a link with the security of the past, with his very ancestors.

"Finally I said to him: 'I know how we can accomplish this. I shall cut it off.'

"'What! You a barber!' The old man's tone expressed his shocked surprise.

"I told him I knew how—that I had learned how to barber myself while camping out in America, and finally he surrendered, saying: 'Well, all right.' After luncheon I clipped his queue, and when he appeared among his advisers he said: 'Well, what do you think of Tsai's hair cutting?' They were delighted. They told me I had taken the bull by the horns; an appropriate simile I think."

Admiral Tsai sees in the reluctance of some powers to cut their navies a kinship with that hesitancy of Yuan Shih-k'ai's to sever his queue. But he is confident they will all come around to it.

"The Chinese navy?" he repeated. "Oh, please, I beg, do not speak of it. A couple of tugs, I assure you it does not threaten the peace of the world."

The Admiral rubbed a lean hand over the stubbly gray hair which grows toward a common center on top of his head in response to the hereditarily acquired pull resulting from those centuries when his ancestors wore queues.

"Good morning. Do not forget that the destiny of China is being worked out here in Washington."

Tsai is also a propagandist.

Test Of Airplane Appliances Costly

London, Dec. 17.—Interesting Air Ministry experiments to solve flying problems become costly rather than spectacular. The testing of a new parachute for the safety of pilots and passengers required the destruction of three small biplanes. Their engines were removed and the weight thus lost supplied by iron castings, whereupon the airplanes, hooked nose downward to an observation balloon, when released, nose dived from a great height. The experiments were successful in each case, however, and dummies lifted from the falling flying machines floated down lightly.

In a test for the best petrol tank as security against fire twenty-seven competitors were entered and a week's trials at the Royal Aircraft factory at Farnborough brought out exciting experiments. One of the conditions stipulated that a tank should not leak under any conditions, and in the testing they were dropped a couple of hundred feet on concrete. The competitors included two Frenchmen, one American, one Italian and the rest British.

With All The Trials They Are Found Everywhere

"Getting out a high class family journal," said the editor, "is no picnic. If I print jokes, folks say that I am silly—If I don't they say I am too serious. If I publish original matter they say I lack variety—If I publish things from other papers they say I am too lazy to write. If I don't go to church, they say I am a heathen—If I do go, I am a hypocrite. If I stay in the office, I ought to be rustling for news—If I rustle for news, I am not attending to business at the office. If I wear old clothes, I am slovenly—If I wear new clothes, they are not paid for. What in thunderation is a poor editor to do anyway? Like as not, someone will say that I swiped this from an exchange. So I did!"

The Moon's Tide Helpers

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest.

The commuters flocking to New York lately found the ferry slips flooded with a high tide that in some places flowed over the wharves. "The new moon did it," said some of the wise ones. "It was the high northeasterly wind," said others. The fact was that both of these causes were operative, but probably the wind was more effective than the new moon in capping the climax. Nevertheless, the moon is the chief tide-maker, though few persons appear to understand how she does it, and especially why a new moon should be particularly powerful in this way.

This can be explained in a sentence—when the moon is "new" she is almost exactly between the sun and the earth, so that the force of her attraction upon the ocean waters is combined with that of the sun, and pulling thus together they raise a tide higher than the average tides for the month. The same thing happens at the time of full moon, when that body is again in line with the sun, but this time on the opposite side of the earth, so that the moon pulls one way and the sun the other. Thus their attractions are again in effect combined. On the other hand, about the time of the quarter moons, the sun and the moon are pulling in directions at right angles to one another, the result being that the tides at those times are lower than usual.

The moon's tide-raising power is nearly two and a half times that of the sun notwithstanding the fact that the sun has 27,000,000 times the attractive force of the moon, for the differential attraction that produces a tide varies inversely as the cube (not the square) of the distance of the attracting body, and the moon is nearly 400 times nearer to us than the sun. Now the cube of 400 is 64,000,000.

But, there is another circumstance that plays an important part in varying the height of the tides, and that is the continually changing distance of the moon. The orbit of the moon is so eccentric that while its average distance from the earth is a little under 240,000 miles, the distance may be increased to nearly 260,000 miles, or diminished to less than 222,000 miles. The point in the moon's orbit where it is nearest the earth is called the perigee, and the opposite point, where it is farthest from the earth, the apogee.

Now, it is evident that when the moon is in perigee her tide-raising power must be greater than at any other time in the course of her monthly revolution around the earth. And, if she happens to be in perigee at the same time that she is in line with the sun, i. e., at either new or full moon, the tides produced by the combined attraction of the moon and the sun will be higher than they usually are at those times.

On the particular occasion referred to at the beginning of this article, the moon was not at the perigee point. The high tide at New York occurred on the morning of November 29, very closely coincident with the time of new moon, but the moon had been in perigee eight days earlier. Her distance from the earth, which was about 225,000 miles at perigee, had become about 239,000 miles at the time of new moon, an increase of 14,000 miles. Accordingly the tide was not as high as it would have been occurring under similar circumstances with the moon at perigee. In that case it would have been about 20 percent higher.

Accordingly, although the sun and the moon acted together because they were in line, yet the moon's attraction was by no means at a maximum. It would appear, then, that the strong northeasterly wind that had been blowing for hours before the time of high tide was the chief agent in raising the tidal wave to an unwonted height, having on this occasion the advantage given by the moon being in conjunction with the sun, though this advantage was, as we have just seen if the moon had, at the same time, been in perigee.

Such practical examples as this are very effective in affording a general understanding of the nature of the tides and of the causes of their variation in height. The great influence of the wind and of barometric pressure is often overlooked. A strong and long continued wind blowing into the entrance of a bay or harbor may by itself raise the level of the water on the shore several feet above the normal, and, of course, if this occurs coincidentally with the arrival of a high tide wave, an inundation may be the result.

The barometric pressure of the air plays its part by depressing the level of the water when the barometer is high and the air proportionally heavy, and allowing the water to rise when the barometer is low and the air light. It is said that upon the whole a local depression of an inch in the barometric column is accompanied by a rise of about one foot in the water level. If we could look down upon the surface of the whole ocean as upon a convex mirror, we should see it not only ridged with waves but depressed into broad hollows under the weight of "high barometer areas" and swollen upward where the air was light.

The Ghostly Mirror

BY PAUL GINISTY

Translated by William L. McPherson

"You may argue as you will, doctor," said Marcel Dauray, "but it is impossible to deny the existence of supra-normal phenomena. I believe that I am a well balanced person. I have never had a streak of the romantic. Nevertheless it has happened to me to run across some mysterious manifestations. At first they were only curious and in no way alarming. But once they took a form which left on me a most painful impression.

"I had a vast room for myself. The furniture was somewhat modern, vaguely Louis-Philippe, but comfortable, chairs covered with brocade, a bed surmounted with a canopy, a round table, a dresser and a mahogany wardrobe with a large mirror. This wardrobe stood some distance off, to the right of the bed.

"One evening, after hunting all day, I went upstairs about 10 o'clock. By the light of the lamp on my table I was reading a newspaper which I hadn't had time before to open. Suddenly, obeying some instinct, I lifted my eyes to the mirror and saw that it was reflecting an image, though very faintly. I say very faintly, yet distinctly enough that I could tell that it was the image of a young woman in a white nightgown, cut in the old-fashioned style. This apparition didn't lack grace. The young woman was gazing with satisfaction at her own face, which, although the reflection was, as it were, foreshortened, seemed to be quite regular in outline. Then the whole thing vanished. I thought I had been dreaming, in the drowsiness which precedes sleep. I dismissed the incident from my mind. The next morning I had forgotten it. For several days thereafter nothing happened to recall it.

"But at the end of the following week, at the same hour, the image appeared again, and much more clearly. Was it an hallucination? I got up, turned the lamp wick higher, lighted the gas jets and walked about the room. The image persisted. The young woman loosened her brown hair and let it fall in waves over her shoulders. Then she brushed it and put it up for the night. I had time to notice that she was really pretty. She smiled at herself, thinking, so to speak, of some one whom she wished to please.

"This time I couldn't have any doubt about the vision. Although astonished, I felt no fear. If it was a phantom, it was a charming one. It came back often, paying no attention to me. It was, in fact, only the phantom of a phantom. The sound of my voice, the slight noises which I made intentionally had no effect on the length of its stay. It grew dimmer, little by little, faded out and disappeared.

"I had plenty of proof that no trickery was possible. How could such an idea have come into the heads of my servants? I still asked myself whether my imagination wasn't playing pranks with me. But I felt perfectly rational, and on each new appearance I observed little details, which, in all their variety, my brain never could have invented. Thus, one evening, the image, taking off her rings, dropped one and hunted for it on the carpet. As she bent down I could see only her bust.

"I speculated deeply about the mystery of mirrors. What figures, what attitudes, what diverse scenes they have reflected! How many expressions, translating all the emotions, have crossed their polished surface! What stories would be retold, if one could snatch from them the secrets which they hold! But why this incredible exception to the rule of their indifference? And why had this one retained only the reflection of a single person?

"I became used to what I could hardly call these visits, because they were not intended to be visits. I waited for them. While they lasted I was a little feverish. I couldn't follow the movements of the phantom, except as, in going and coming, it approached the mirror. When it moved away all trace of it was lost. I attributed my feverishness to an uneasiness due to my inability to discover the cause of the phenomenon. For, I repeat, I never had any fear. How shall I say it? I felt even a little embarrassed thus to surprise my phantom in undress. It seemed to me that it ought to have given a furious exhibition of outraged modesty.

"Evenings came when I noticed an alteration. The glass reflected a face worried, saddened and then in anguish. Once it was convulsed and absolutely tragic. It expressed atrocious suffering. The vision which appeared was that of a young woman who could hardly stand erect. She put her hand on her breast, as if she was tortured by intolerable pain. For an instant she gazed, with a sort of pity, at her haggard eyes, her twisted mouth, her drawn brow. She tottered, waved her hands in the air, gave a terrible yawn, seemed to utter a piercing cry and fell. I saw in the mirror the last struggles of a death agony. After that, nothing. The image never reappeared.

"I sought an explanation of the strange spectacle which had unrolled before my eyes. Are inanimate objects impregnated with emanations of the persons with whom they have come in contact, and in the presence of a sensitive medium (one can be that without knowing it) do they send out the radiations which they have absorbed? It is an extravagant theory. But who can tell?

"I wrote to the tenant who had preceded me, asking him some discreet questions. He answered evasively. I made inquiries of the country people. What I learned gradually was that long ago a tragedy had been enacted in the house which I occupied. They knew, in brief, only this: A young married woman had a love affair which was disclosed to her husband. She knew his brutal nature. She believed herself lost and took poison in the bedroom which had been hers and which was now mine.

"The mirror had reproduced my gestures. You smile, doctor? Yes, why hers, and not those of others? Was it because an atmosphere of horror had clung about this room? I admit that no rational explanation is plausible. But then? I was as skeptical as you with regard to the supernatural. But how if a similar adventure had happened to you?"

"Oh, my dear sir," said the doctor, flicking the ash from his cigar, "you must let me wait till I have been favored by such a marvelous experience before I can give you any opinion."

SUPER-DURABLE FLAT PAINT
FLAT WALL FINISH
A perfect Paint of smooth surface for Interior Wall Coating

The surface obtainable with this paint is smooth and flat, i.e., it is not a grainy, dead, lifeless finish, but of a velvety texture. It dries in a reasonably quick time, so that work can be carried out effectively, yet has the property of remaining open long enough to enable the worker to cover a large surface of wall without making laps or edges.
Excellent results with Super Durable Flat Finish are easily obtained, irrespective of the skill of the user, and an elaborate preparation of the surface is usually quite unnecessary.
Super Durable Flat Finish has been tried on non-absorbent surfaces of all kinds and where distemper and oil paint have proved prone to shell or flake off, it has always adhered. It gives a lasting finish of surprising beauty.
1 Imperial Gallon covers about 130 square yards one coat.

1. All the right, title and interest in and to the unexpired term, to wit, about 17 years and 2 months, of a certain lease dated the 1st day of April 1914 made between George Dallars of Shanghai China, as lessors and Chang Tsing Ching of the same place as lessees, covering the property known as B. C. Lot No. 682 which said lease by an agreement in writing dated the 23rd day of August 1915, was assigned and transferred to the said Mortgagors; and together with all the buildings erected upon the said premises by the said Mortgagors and together with all the existing incumbrances herein mentioned and together with all furniture, fixtures and effects contained in or upon the said premises or contained within the building erected thereon, as per inventory.

2. All the right, title and interest in and to a certain lease, dated the 1st day of October 1917, made by and between Chen Woo Sze, Chen Yu Shing and Chen Ling Sung all of Shanghai China, as lessors and the said Mortgagors, as lessees, covering all that piece or parcel of land situated on the north side of Bubbling Well Road, Shanghai aforesaid and known as Cadastral Lot No. 1 Western District as shown on a plan (covered pink) attached to the said lease, said lease being for a term of 25 years of which about 20 years and 8 months remain unexpired, and upon terms therein stated together with all buildings erected thereon and together with all the existing incumbrances herein mentioned and together with all furniture, fixtures and effects in and upon said premises or contained within the buildings now erected thereon, as per inventory aforesaid.

The incumbrances above referred to are as follows:—

(A) Lease for the 2nd and 3rd floors of the main building, including the roof thereof and the building on the top of the one known as the Liberty Hall both of the property North of Bubbling Well Road granted by the said Co. to the Oriental Stock & Produce Exchange Co. Ltd. for a term of 4½ years commencing from the 1st of September 1921.

(B) Leases respectively, for houses known as Nos. I. 448, 449, 450 and 451 Thibet Road, granted by Loh Sih Hou, the former General Manager purporting to have been granted on behalf of the Hsin Nieh New World Co. to the Hup Shing Tobacco Shop both for a term of three years commencing from September 1920, the validity of the said 2 leases are being disputed.

Particulars of the above as well as other details may be obtained from this office on application.

Condition of Sale:—

On the fall of the Hammer the buyer must put on account Tls. 50,000 cash or certified cheque for said amount on a trustworthy bank and balance of purchase money to be settled in 24 hours.

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

That with reference to the item (a) under the incumbrances upon the properties of the Hsin Nieh New World Co. as published for sale which reads as follows:—

"In consideration and in pursuance of certain arrangements made by them with the Yung Kong Hong at the time when the Lease referred in paragraph 2 was obtained, the Company during the term of the said lease should pay to the said Yung Kong the sum of Tls. 230. per month and should allow the said Yung Hong to occupy free of rent the 2 houses known as Nos. F2 and F3 Bubbling Well Road."

We are instructed by Messrs. Burkhardt, Amidani & Co. that the incumbrance above referred to was assumed by Hsin Nieh New World Co., that, as no such incumbrance as aforesaid was mentioned either in the lease referred to in paragraph 2 of the Auction notice or in the Indenture of Mortgage executed in favour of Messrs. Burkhardt, Amidani & Co. by the said Hsin Nieh New World Company, the properties of the said New World Company will, therefore, be sold free from the said incumbrance.

Here's Detailed Text Of Tariff Revision Plan

At the meeting of the Committee on Pacific and Far Eastern questions on January 5, Senator Underwood, for the subcommittee on Chinese customs duties, recommended a resolution which was adopted by committee, as follows:

"The powers attenting this conference accept this agreement to prepare the way for the speedy abolition of likin and the fulfillment of other conditions laid down in article VIII of the Anglo-Chinese treaty of September 5, 1902, and the corresponding articles of the United States and Japanese treaties with a view to levying the surtaxes provided for in those articles.

It is further agreed (1) that the present tariff on imports shall be forthwith revised and raised.

(2) That this revision shall be carried out forthwith with a revision committee at Shanghai on the general lines of the last revision. The revision shall proceed as rapidly as possible with a view of its completion within four months from the conclusion of the present conference. The revised tariff shall become effective two months after publication without awaiting ratification.

(3) That the interprovisions to be applied until the articles referred to in paragraph one come into operation be considered by the aforesaid special conference which shall authorise the levying of a surtax on dutiable imports as from such date for such purpose and subject to such conditions as they may determine. The surtax shall be at a uniform rate of 2½ percent advalorum except in the case of certain articles of luxury which in the opinion of the conference can bear a greater increase without unduly impeding trade and upon which the total surtax shall not exceed five percent.

TARIFF REVISION

(4) That there shall be a fair revision of the tariff to take effect at the expiration of four years following the completion of the immediate revision herein authorised, in order to insure that the rates shall correspond to the advalorum rates fixed.

(5) That following this revision there shall be a period of revision of the tariff every seven years for the same purpose.

(6) That in order to prevent delay such periodical revisions shall be effected in accordance with rules to be settled by the special conference provided in paragraph 2.

(7) That in all matters relating to customs duties there shall be effective equality of treatment and of opportunity for all nations parties to this agreement.

(8) That the principal of uniformity in the rates of customs duties levied on all the frontiers, land and maritime, be recognised and that it be referred to the special conference mentioned, which shall have power to make adjustments which may be necessary in cases in which the customs privilege to be abolished was granted in return for some local economic favor. In the meantime any increase in rates of customs duties or surtax imposed in pursuance of the present agreement shall be levied at a uniform advalorum rate on all frontiers, both land and maritime.

(9) That the charge for transit passes shall be at the rate of two and one half percent advalorum.

(10) That the treaty powers not here represented shall be invited to accept the present agreements.

(11) That this agreement shall override all provisions of treaties between China and the powers which accept it which are inconsistent with its terms.

The delegates for China submitted the following communication which it was unanimously agreed should form part of foregoing resolution as an appendix thereto:

"The Chinese delegation has the honor to inform the committee of the Far Eastern questions of the conference on the limitation of armaments that the Chinese government have no intention to effect any change which may disturb the present administration of the Chinese maritime customs."

Senator Underwood in a speech presenting report, estimated the additional revenue from the revised customs duties would be $46,107,000.

ARMY REDUCTION

The subcommittee also presented the following resolution to be annexed, the Chinese delegate not voting:

"The members of the subcommittee in studying the question of increasing the Chinese customs tariff rates to meet urgent needs of the Chinese government have been deeply impressed with the severe strain on China's public revenue through the maintenance of excessive military forces in various parts of the country. Most of these forces are controlled by the military chiefs of the provinces and their continued maintenance appears to be mainly responsible for China's present unsettled political conditions.

"It is felt that large and prompt reduction of these forces will not only advance the cause of China's political unity and economic development but hasten her financial rehabilitation. Therefore without any intention to interfere in the internal problems, but animated by a sincere desire to see China develop and maintain for herself an effective and stable government, alike in her own interest and in the general interest of trade, and inspired by the spirit of this conference whose aims are to reduce through the limitation of armaments the enormous disbursements which manifestly constitute the greater part of the encumbrance upon enterprise and national prosperity, the subcommittee ventures to suggest for consideration of the committee the advisibility of laying before the conference for its adoption the resolution expressing the earnest hope of the conference and embodying a friendly recommendation to China that immediate and effective steps be taken by the Chinese government to reduce the aforesaid military forces and expenditures."

The annex to the resolution concerning the withdrawal of armed forces by foreign powers was unanimously adopted as follows, China not voting:

Whereas the powers have from time to time stationed armed forces, including police and railway guards in China to protect the lives and property of foreigners lawfully in China.

And whereas it appears that certain of these armed forces are maintained in China without the authority of any treaty or agreement

And whereas the powers have declared their intention to withdraw their armed forces now on duty in China without the authority of any treaty or agreement whenever China shall assure the protection for the lives and property of foreigners in China

And whereas China has declared her intention and capacity to assume the protection of the lives and property of foreigners in China, now to the end that there may be clear understanding of the conditions upon which in each case the practicable execution of these intentions depend

TROOP INQUIRY

It is resolved that the diplomatic representatives of the powers now in conference at Washington, to wit, United States of America, Belgium, the British Empire, France, Italy, Japan, Netherlands, and Portugal, shall be instructed by their respective governments wherever China shall so request to associate themselves with three representatives of the Chinese government to conduct collectively a full and impartial inquiry into the issues raised by the foregoing declarations of intention made by the powers and by China and shall thereafter prepare a full and comprehensive report setting out without reservation their findings and their opinion with regard to the matter hereby referred to, and shall furnish an account of their report to each of the nine governments concerned which shall severally make public the report with such comment as each may deem appropriate.

The representatives of any of the powers may make or join in minority reports stating their differences, if any, from the majority report.

Any of the powers above named shall be deemed free to accept or reject all or any of the findings of facts or opinions expressed in the report, but that in no case shall any of the said powers make its acceptance of all or any of the findings of facts or opinions either directly or indirectly dependent on the granting by China of any special concession, favor, benefit or immunity, whether political or economical.

The Chinese delegation expressed itself regarding this resolution to the effect that while it appreciated the proposal, yet under international law the obligation of the intervening states to withdraw their armed forces cannot rightfully be postponed.

BRITAIN LEADS IN COMMERCE WITH RUSSIA

One Third Of Soviet's Imports Bought In England

(Chung Mei News Agency)

Peking, Jan. 17.—Russian foreign trade statistics for the first nine months of 1921 show that neither American nor European business houses have made much progress in commercial dealings with the Soviet Republic.

From time to time spasmodic references are made in the press of the world to the heavy trade that is being developed with Russia, and it is frequently intimated that one country or another is getting ahead of its rivals in procuring Russian business by a show of friendship towards the Soviet Government.

But statistics give the lie to these statements. During the first nine months of 1921 Soviet Russia imported 639,000 tons of foreign goods, of which 230,000 tons consisted of foodstuffs and seed grain, mostly famine relief supplies.

Two hundred thousand tons of coal were imported into Russia during the same period, as well as 16,000 tons of paper for the use of the Government and the growing Soviet press, and 129,000 tons of metals and metal products.

England shipped more goods to Russia than any other country, her shipments totalling over one-third of Russia's imports, Coal and foodstuffs composed the heaviest British shipments. After England comes Germany with 23 percent of Russia's imports. America is third with 19.5 percent, most of America's tonnage consisting of relief supplies.

For the same nine months Russia's export tonnage was 99,000, whereof 93 percent was made up of raw materials, while the balance consisted mainly of foodstuffs. Germany bought only a small quantity of flax and asbestos from Russia.

Little Progress In Rail Parleys

(Chung Mei News Agency)

Peking, Jan. 17.—Informal discussions between Mr. A. Paikess, special envoy of the Soviet Government, and Chinese officials with regard to the return of the Chinese Eastern Railway to China have made no great progress up to the present time.

The Soviet representative has made a definite and precise offer to China, but the Peking Government has not so far seen its way clear to replying to this offer in the same manner.

As a result there have been simply a few conversations that have led to nothing; and it is not regarded as likely that any agreement will be reached with regard to the Chinese Eastern until the present Peking Government feels itself more secure or until another and more stable government takes its place.

Other factors, too, such as the discussions at the Washington Conference and the attitude of the Powers towards the Chinese Eastern Railway, are entering into the situation; and it is not probable that anything definite will be decided here until the situation in regard to these factors clears up.

In any event neither the Russians nor the Chinese seem to be in any hurry to settle the question at present; and the chances now are that the Russo-Chinese discussions will drag along for weeks or, even, months.

Train Wreck At Peking Disastrous

(Chung Mei News Agency)

Peking, Jan. 17.—Seven persons were injured at Hsichibmen Station yesterday morning when No. 7 passenger train went off the tracks and crashed into one of the uprights supporting the platform shelter.

The post was broken clean through and the roof above it collapsed and fell upon six railway policemen and one passenger, all of whom were more or less seriously injured. Two of the policemen are at present in a critical condition.

Investigations into the causes of the accident are being made by the Ministry of Communications, which is determined to punish all officials guilty of carelessness in connection with the accident.

Passenger train No. 7 was inward bound when the accident happened and, as the material damage was trifling, it was soon possible to restore normal traffic conditions at the station.
